IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE OPENING

JENOL INVASION
UPROAR
FEELING AGAIN
ROUSED
NANKING ACTION
DEMANDED

(Special to "Telegraph")
Shanghai, July 22.
The Japanese aerial bombardment of Chaoyong and the belief that Japan is contemplating the invasion of Jehol, a province of China Proper, has aroused strong anti-Japanese passions which had appeared to be on the wane.

The patriotism of the Chinese public in Shanghai has been stirred by the Jehol incidents and a meeting of the Shanghai Federation of Chinese Citizens was held yesterday afternoon, when the Japanese were bitterly attacked, and it was decided to send representatives to Nanking to demand action by the authorities.

The representatives were instructed to demand that the National Government take immediate steps for the defence of Jehol and North China and for the recovery of the lost territory of Manchuria.

The wave of feeling has also permeated to certain Government quarters.

LEADER'S STATEMENT.
Mr. Tseng Chung-ming, the Vice Minister of Railways, arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning, his mission being that of soliciting the opinions of the various Government leaders in regard to the situation in Jehol.

Interviewed regarding the likely policy of the National Government concerning the Japanese invasion of Jehol, Mr. Tseng Chung-ming stated that the Nanking Government was prepared to concentrate its entire military force for the defence of Jehol and North China.

SON OF CHARLES DICKENS

RETIRING FROM POST OF JUDGE

London, July 21.
Sir Henry Dickens, K.C., Common Sergeant of the City of London, and one of the oldest English Judges, to-day announced his intention to retire in October.

Sir Henry, who is 84, has been a Judge at the Old Bailey for 15 years. He is the only surviving son of Charles Dickens, the novelist.

HONGKONG DOLLAR SLIGHTLY UP

EXCHANGE MARKET LIFELESS

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/8th to 1s. 3 1/4d. this morning, but the local market is quite lifeless.

In London, silver rose 1/8th, the rise being chiefly due to scarcity of sellers. China was a small buyer. After the official fixing, the market ruled quietly steady.

CANADA'S OFFER TO BRITAIN

GENERAL APPROVAL

THE IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE at Ottawa was formally opened with impressive ceremonial in the Parliament Building yesterday, the speeches of the heads of the delegations revealing common consent to the principle of closer economic co-operation.

Mr. Sean O'Kelly, the Irish Free State delegate, was no more than mildly provocative, while suggesting that the new British duties could only mean a substantial change in the direction of Anglo-Irish trade.

IRELAND THE YOUNG UNHOPEFUL

Ottawa, July 21. A gathering ever held within the British Empire.

MR. BENNETT'S OFFER.
After he had been appointed Chairman of Conference, Mr. R. B. Bennett announced that Canada proposed to grant to the United Kingdom an extension of the free list, to retain existing preferences in favour of Britain, and to increase preferences in respect of a selected list of articles which Britain was specially equipped to supply to Canadian markets without injuring the efficiency of Canadian enterprise.

In exchange, Canada asked for the retention of existing preferences and their effective extension to other natural and processed products of which the United Kingdom is an importer. This offer, said Mr. Bennett, would be applied in principle to other Dominions.

EMPIRE LEADERSHIP.
Mr. Bennett said that the Conference would co-operate in determining a plan along such lines, whereby the Empire might continue in leadership among the nations of the world.

Canadian industries which had reached maturity under protective tariffs must support the Canadian Government proposals because of the great advantages which could be secured for exporters of natural products.

Mr. Bennett said that the proposals were offered to all other parts of the Empire wherever their application would prove mutually advantageous.

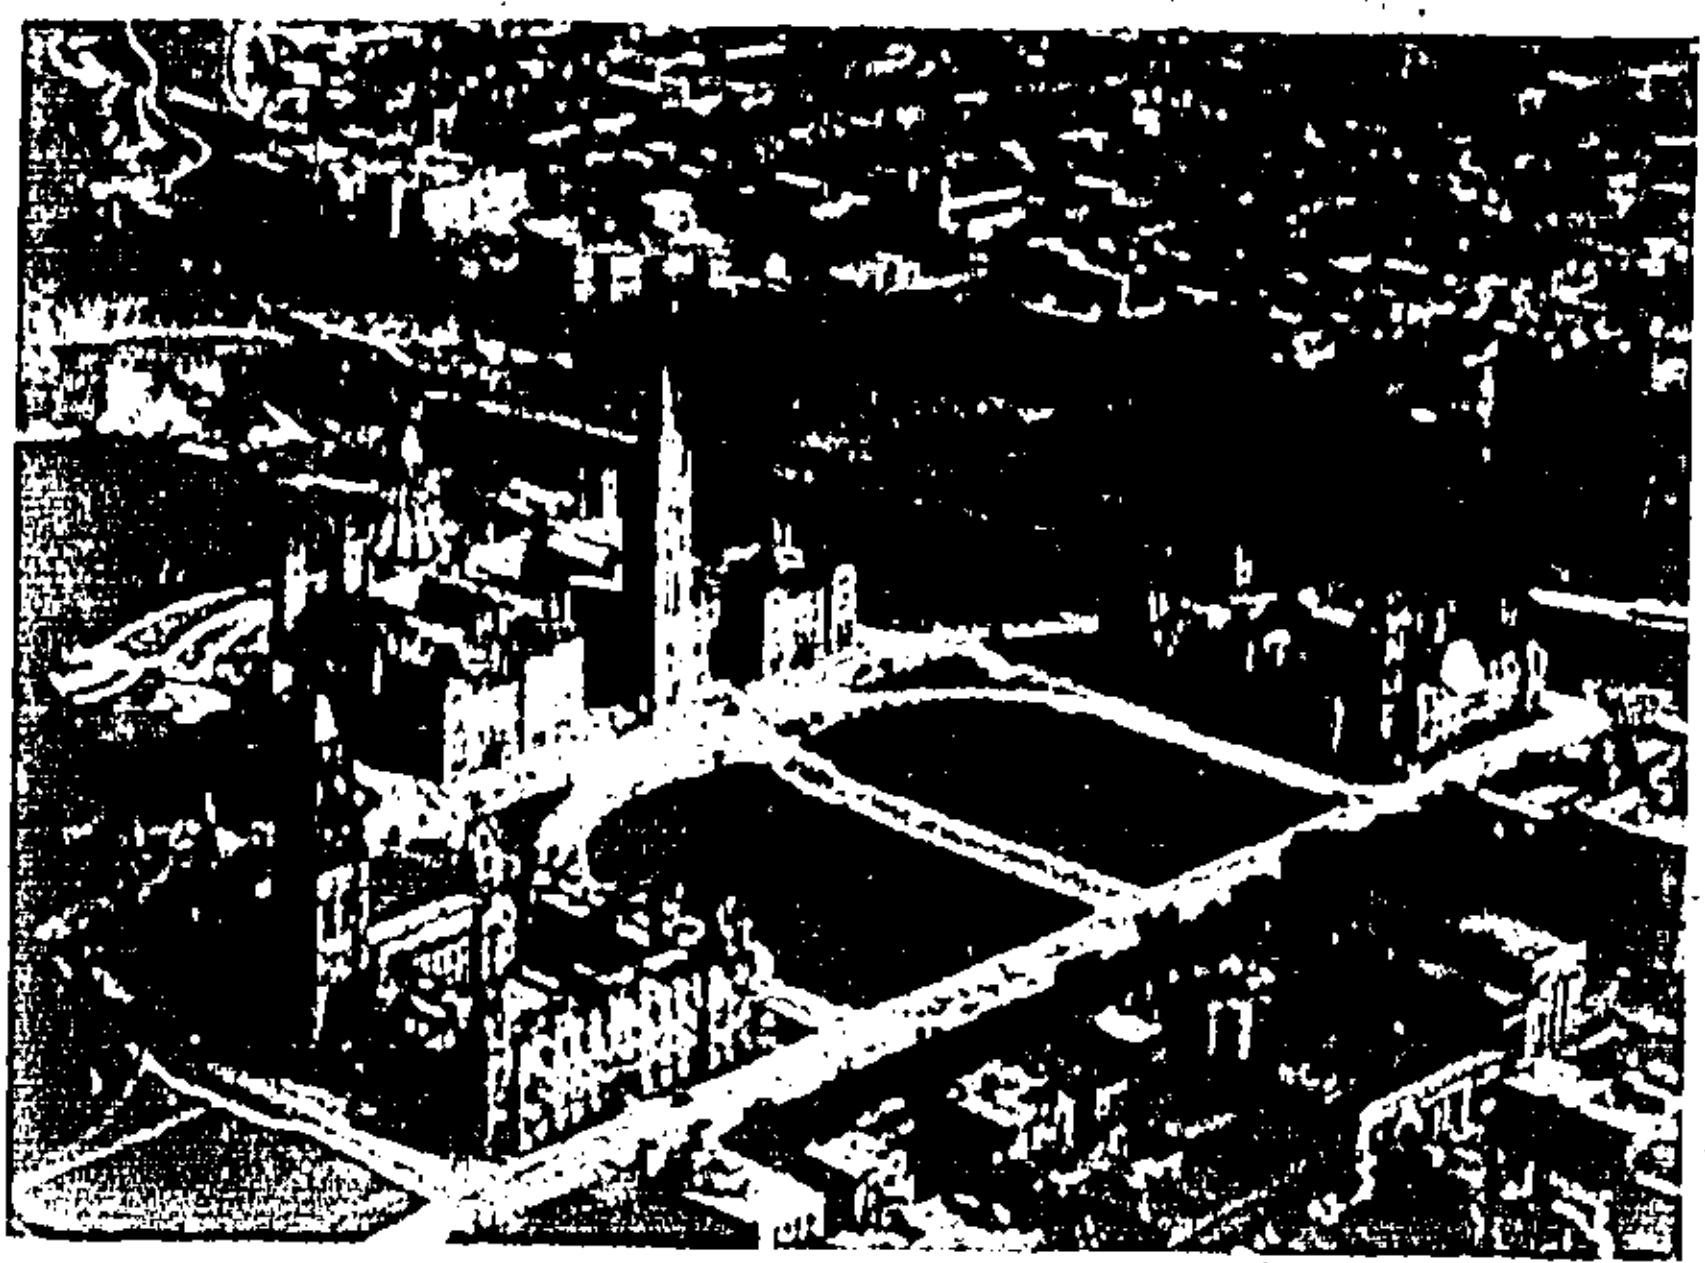

MR. BALDWIN'S PLEDGE.
The chief British delegate, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, pledged Britain to co-operate in developing Mr. Bennett's proposals. He said that of the trade carried on by the Empire 70 per cent. was still with foreign countries and only 30 per cent. among themselves.

The possibilities of expansion to-day were enormous, but looking to the future generations, as population increased, the scope could hardly be measured.

LOYAL RESOLUTION.
A resolution that a reply be sent expressing the homage of the delegates to the King moved by the Canadian Premier, Mr. R. B. Bennett, and seconded by Sir Attil Chatterjee, the Indian leader, was unanimously adopted, all the delegates standing.

In welcoming the delegates on behalf of Canada, the Governor General said the conference might well be the most momentous

IRON HAND IN BERLIN

DRASTIC ORDER TO POLICE

PARIS UNEASY

(Reuter's Special Service).

Berlin, July 21.
Under stern military rule, with General Rundstedt in command of the Reichswehr forces entrusted with the task of maintaining order, the city was perfectly quiet to-day.

The excitement is subsiding and the Dictatorship Government is apparently satisfied that it has secured complete control of the situation.

Herr von Papen is methodically pursuing a policy of replacing the Socialistic officials with those of "Nationalist" inclinations and is drastically suppressing all signs of Communist activity.

SHOOTING INSTRUCTION.

General Rundstedt has instructed the police to use their rifles promptly and energetically if necessary and the deposed Ministers of the Prussian Government have bowed to their fate under protest.

General Rundstedt has also issued orders prohibiting anyone from inciting participation in a general strike.

VON PAPEN CARTOON.

The newspaper Achtuhrabendblatt has been suspended for four days for publishing a caricature of Herr von Papen drinking wine and issuing emergency orders.

Reuter's Paris correspondent says that the action of the German Rightists in employing the big stick in Prussia and throwing out the Socialist Ministry by force, is regarded as a new concession to Hitler and has provoked a definite note of uneasiness.

SOCCER DISPUTE SENSATION

MR. MOK HING & ARMY CLUBS

DENIES REPORTED STATEMENTS

(By "Wanderer.")

Mr. Mok Hing did not, of course, make the amazing statements attributed to him in a contemporary yesterday in connexion with the friction between the Chinese clubs and the H.K.F.A.

It was suggested that Mr. Mok declared the Chinese intention of resigning from the Association if they did not achieve their objective and that they were assured of the support of the Army clubs, who would break away from the H.K.F.A. and form a league of their own with the Chinese clubs.

This morning, Mr. Mok Hing stated emphatically that he gave no interview to any newspaper yesterday.

IMPOSSIBLE.
It was impossible for him to have made such statements for two reasons (1) the views were not his, (2) he had no authority to suggest what course of action the Army were likely to take.

He was quite satisfied with the statement made by Captain Heywood in Council on Wednesday to the effect that the Army reserved the right to take any course of action.

The Chinese clubs were fighting for a principle, which affected all clubs, Chinese civilian and military. Whatever the immediate results, they had no intention of resigning from the H.K.F.A.

TO FIGHT ISSUE.

They proposed to remain within the Association in order to fight out the issue. He did not expect support from any club or clubs unless they considered that the attitude of the Chinese clubs was the correct one.

It was not a question of amending rules, as Mr. R. K. Duncan seemed to think. South China does not consider that the rule needs changing. They consider that the rule should be strictly adhered to and it is their contention that under the rule in question the retiring Councilors, unless they are also club-delegates, have no right to record a vote on the elections to Council.

A SIDE-KICK FROM THE TYPHOON

GALE RAGES THROUGH THE NIGHT

EMPRESS'S SHAVE

THE GALE WHICH RAGED over the Colony last night was a mere side-kick of the typhoon, which passed well to the South and is now threatening Hoihow with a very severe "blow."

In the afternoon, it seemed that the heavy winds were dying away, but shortly after eight o'clock, the gusts began to strengthen and for several hours afterwards the gale raged, varying in violence from hour to hour.

Several fierce squalls were experienced, a wind of 67 miles an hour velocity being registered at the Royal Observatory. The barometer remained fairly steady during the whole period of the storm, which was accompanied by heavy rains, and did not begin to rise until about three o'clock this morning.

SIXTY-SEVEN M.P.H. SQUALL

All further danger was considered to be past in the forenoon to-day and the warning signals were taken down.

No serious damage is reported on land. A junk capsized near Lamna with a loss of two lives and the Empress of Canada narrowly avoided a collision with a Japanese boat at the Kowloon wharves at seven o'clock this morning. She gave up the effort to go alongside and berthed in the stream until eleven.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

In the course of a statement this morning, Mr. C. W. Jeffries, Director of the Royal Observatory, stated that the gale lasted for quite 24 hours from 8.30 a.m. yesterday. The wind direction during that period varied from E. N. E. to E. S. E., with an average velocity of 27 m. p. h.

The highest squalls recorded were 66 at 10.35 a.m., 67 at 9.15 p.m., 59 at 11.35 p.m. and 63 at 11.55 p.m.

The rainfall for the 24 hours ended at 10.30 a.m. to-day was 3.34 inches.

Observations were received from several of H. M. ships and from the steamers Hirundo, Kuying, Chekiang, Felix Rousseau, Kiangsu, Empress of Canada and Patroclus. The last-named vessel kept up hourly observations from 5 p.m. yesterday. The Observatory is also indebted to Pratras Station, Gap Rock and Wagan lighthouses for the excellent series of hourly observations supplied throughout the gale.

INTENSITY INCREASED.

The typhoon slackened its progress after passing the meridian of Hongkong and increased in intensity considerably. This explains the small shift in wind direction and its constant velocity.

This morning, the typhoon was situated near Hoihow, probably moving westwards.

EMPRESS EXPERIENCE.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, which arrived early this morning, experienced extremely rough weather accompanied by heavy rain and mist last night.

dropped. She eventually berthed at 11 a.m.

The American Mail liner President Madison arrived from Manila at 9 a.m. berthing at Kowloon wharf. Captain R. J. Healy, the Commander, stated this morning that heavy south-easterly winds were experienced last night, but nothing out of the ordinary occurred.

The river steamers which left their wharves yesterday are still at their anchorage at Stonecutters.

SHIPPING WAITS.

Only four vessels left port yesterday morning, the Kwaiyang, Lyons Maru, Chungking and Baron Erskine. The list issued by the Harbour Office for the 24 hours ended 9 a.m. to-day gave no arrivals.

Junks and smaller craft are still anchored in the various typhoon belts, and the harbour presents a rather deserted appearance with only the ferries and a few motor boats moving about.

JUNK TRAGEDY.

The only tragic consequence of the gale so far reported concerns a cargo junk which was on its way to Hongkong from Lama Island yesterday morning, when it capsized during a sudden squall and precipitated its 19 occupants into the water.

Two young women, part of the boat's crew, were drowned, but the remainder were rescued and brought into Hongkong.

The boat, of 100-plus capacity, was under the control of Ho Young-shi, the master and had left Young Sha Wan on Lama Island about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The boat had on board a cargo of 15 pigs and a crew of 19 persons.

OTHER JUNKS TO RESCUE.

Almost immediately after leaving Lama Island a sudden squall developed and the boat capsized throwing the entire occupants into the sea. Flashing junks were lying handy and effected the rescue of 17 members of the crew. Two women, Yeung Po, aged 27, and Cheung Tai, aged 25, were drowned.

The waterlogged junk was last seen floating in the direction of Ping Chau Island.

BRITAIN'S AIR CHIEF RESIGNS

London, July 21.
The Air Chief Marshal, Sir John Salmond, has tendered his resignation in order to accelerate promotion in the junior ranks of the Royal Air Force.

He will be succeeded by Air Marshal Sir Geoffrey Salmond, the change becoming effective in August.

The Bidding

South opened the bidding with one heart. West over-called with two clubs. North passed and East bid three diamonds, which is one more than necessary. This is a forcing bid and requires the bidding to be kept open until game is arrived at. South passes and West bids four clubs, which East carries to five.

The Play

North had the opening lead and led the ten of hearts, the top of his partner's suit, which East, the dummy, won with the ace. South putting on the seven-spot. The nine of hearts is returned from dummy, South playing the jack, declarer the four and North the six. South has a bad hand to lead away from, a decision to lead trump. He leads the six of trump, which the declarer allows to ride to dummy's jack.

It is easy for West to read South's hand. In order to have an original bid he is practically marked with the four kings and the queen of hearts. Declarer's next play is the ace of diamonds from dummy and then the queen. When South refuses to cover and plays the nine, the declarer discards the five of spades. A small diamond is then led from dummy, South plays the king and declarer trumps with the five of clubs and then leads the eight of hearts. North's best defence is to discard the ten of diamonds. The dummy trumps with the deuce of clubs. The declarer must not return the diamond or he will establish a trump trick for North. The proper lead is the queen of clubs from dummy. South plays the king and declarer wins the trick with the ace. Declarer then leads his ten of clubs, picking up the nine from the North hand, the eight of diamonds is discarded from dummy and South discards the four of spades.

West has a good reading on the South hand: king-queen of hearts and the king and one other spade. Declarer therefore swings his last trump, the eight of clubs. North drops the deuce of spades, the three of spades is played from dummy and South is forced to play the queen of hearts.

The declarer now makes his position or end play by leading the five

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to Ernest Heath, her former employer. She is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son whom she met at business school. Heath sends Susan's aunt south to recuperate from an illness and the girl is grateful to him. Her fiancé, Susan's rejected suitor, shoots himself after wounding Heath. He recovers and goes away. Bob tries unsuccessfully to see Susan but she does not know this. He sees her at the theatre one night with Heath and becomes angry. Denise Ackroyd, debutante, wants Bob for herself. Susan meets Bob at a masked ball and he makes love to her. Denise interrupts.

CHAPTER XLII

The two men faced each other across the shining expanse of mahogany. Heath was seated, his fingers playing nervously with the ivory handled paper knife. Waring strolled up and down, hands in pockets.

"But tell me what happened!" Heath demanded impatiently. "If what you believe is true they should have come to some understanding that night. I've heard nothing. Everything has gone as before."

Waring shrugged. "I've told you all I know," he explained. "Maybe I've been all kinds of a fool to mix into this at all. But you asked me and I only told you what I know."

"I'm grateful to you," said the older man stiffly. "I know I can trust you. That's why it seemed a good idea to have you take her to that party. But if they met and if nothing happened why then—!" He raised his brows inquiringly.

"I see the point. You want to go ahead. Well, I don't know but what you're right," Waring said slowly. "They danced with each other. That I'm sure of. And they had a brief tete-a-tete. I must admit I felt like a blooming spy."

"Sorry, old man, but it couldn't be helped. It was in a good cause."

his employer reminded him. "That's that. She's had a chance to talk with him and see him again and decide that their little flurry is over. That was what I wanted to be sure of. Well, now I'm satisfied."

"Good." But Waring's tone was dubious and Heath glanced at him irritably.

"Out with it, man. If you've got something to say, say it and be done with it."

Waring stared reflectively out across the roof tops.

"It's nothing except that she seemed a bit excited as we drove home," he said lamely.

Heath laughed aloud, relieved. "Is that all? Well, I can see nothing in that. Any girl might be excited coming home from a big party. No, no, you're getting to be an old woman." He clapped the other affectionately on the shoulder. "I appreciate your solicitude, old chap, but honestly, I think it was pretty much wasted. Your imagination was working overtime."

"I hope you're right," Waring muttered.

"I know I am," said Heath heartily. And on that note the conversation ended.

"Why do we wait any longer?" Heath asked Susan that night over a table high in a city restaurant. The city lay far slung beneath them, a spangle of lights to north and south.

His complacency was momentarily disturbed by the look she flashed at him. There was something unsettling about that look. "She behaves as though she were afraid of me," the man thought in surprise. He was very gentle.

"Your aunt's coming back on Saturday, isn't she?" he went on.

"Well then, why couldn't we have a very quiet ceremony the following Monday and sail from New York next morning?"

With an effort Susan managed to keep her hand from trembling. Steadily she said, "All right, I'll arrange it that way."

The man liked her quiet response. Triumphant he thought of Waring's hints and fears. Waring had been wrong. The girl was perfectly willing to marry him quickly and go away. That did not look as though she were nursing a broken heart.

That night as Susan brushed her hair before Rose's dressing table she told herself it would be better this way. She would go away, see new sights and new faces, and be cured of the fever which had possessed her so long. Aunt Jessie would be pleased. Everyone would be. There was no use postponing it any longer.

Lifelessly she told Rose, "I'm going to be married Monday."

"My dear!" Awe-struck, the other girl laid down the orange stick she had been using and gazed at Susan. "Try to sound a little more cheerful about it. It's not a funeral, you know!"

Susan summoned a smile. "I know. I didn't mean to seem gloomy. I'm tired, I guess."

"You poor kid, you," Rose hugged her. "Let me send out that beige suit with the fox collar I was telling you about. It's just your size and the style will be perfect for you. That will save your shopping and I can have it charged. You certainly can't, finished Rose robustly, "be married in any of your old things."

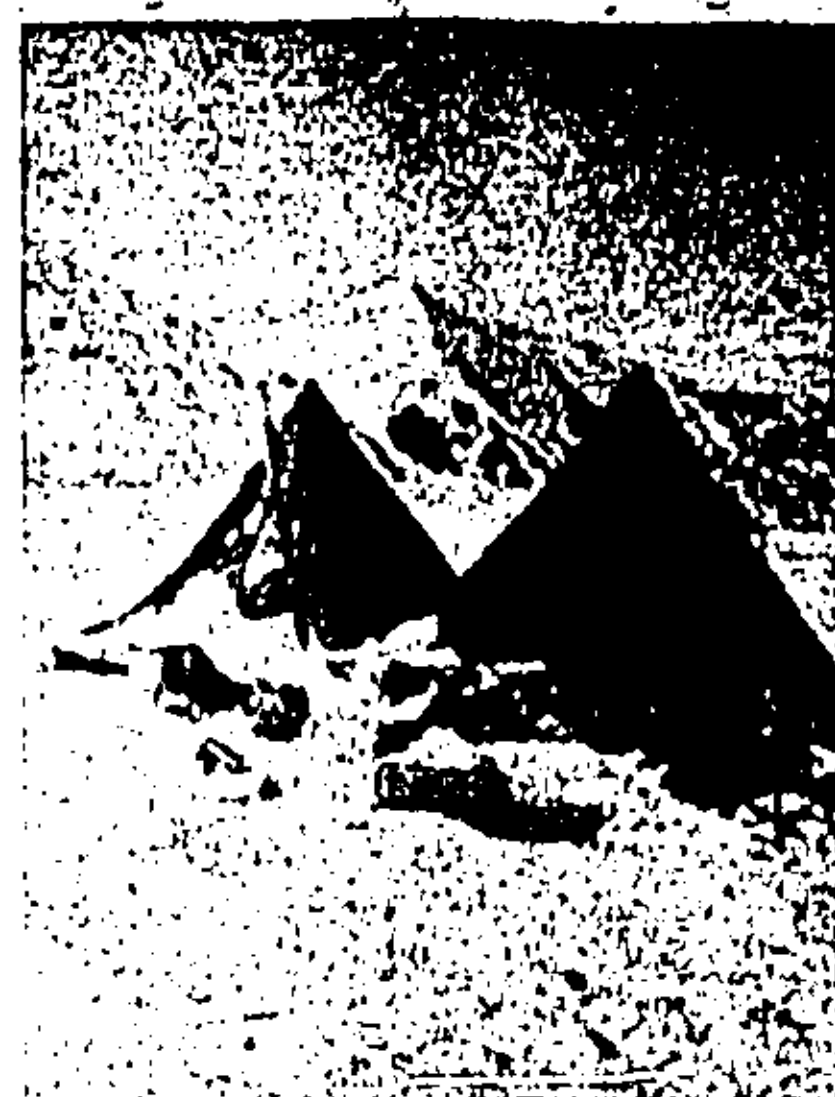

Susan agreed without enthusiasm. It was kind of Rose to go to so much bother for her. Of course she should look well for the ceremony. It would be nice if she could feel excited and happy about it as brides were supposed to feel, but since she couldn't she must at least try to look the part.

The suit was delivered the following afternoon and with it came pumps of snakeskin and stockings of sheerest silk. Rose had even chosen a tiny turban to complete the ensemble. It was fashioned of myriad small velvet flowers in pale fawn shades.

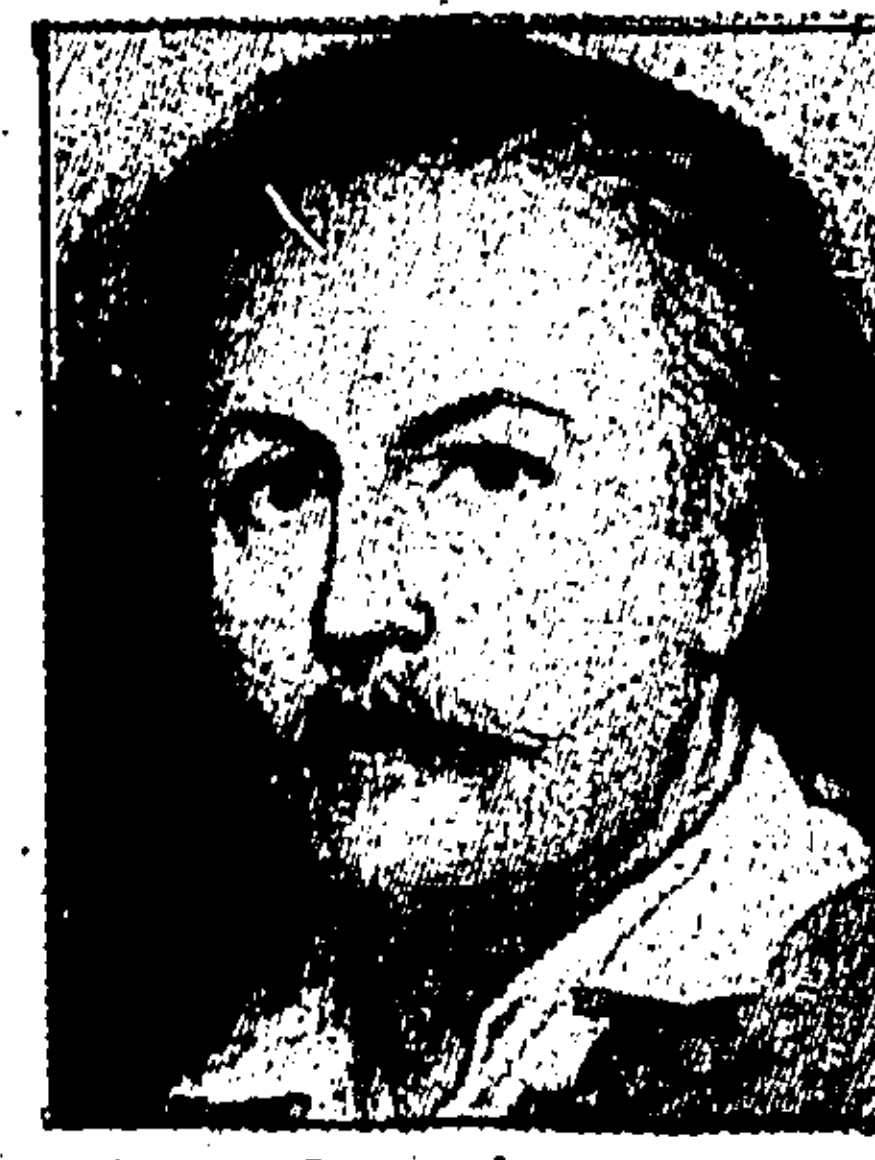

The young man set his jaw. "I don't see that," he muttered. "I had only just found you. There wasn't any point in running off like that."

lowing afternoon and with it came pumps of snakeskin and stockings of sheerest silk. Rose had even chosen a tiny turban to complete the ensemble. It was fashioned of myriad small velvet flowers in pale fawn shades.

"Try them on, lovey," Mrs. Milton commanded. Susan obeyed. Listless as she was she could not help a feeling of satisfaction at the effect produced by the new outfit. She looked to herself, slim, straight and remotely elegant as the mannequins sketched on the pages of Vogue.

"You surely are a picture!" Mrs. Milton told her, wiping away a sentimental tear. "When I was a girl we thought we weren't married right unless we wore white satin and a long veil, but I declare, no one could mistake you for anything but a bride this minute. Listen, dear, there's the doorbell," she went on rapidly. "My hair's a sight, so you go. There's a good child."

Susan flung open the door, prepared to speed some luckless vendor of books on his way. Could she be dreaming? There before her stood Bob Dunbar.

"May I come in for a moment?" he asked coolly. "But I see you were going out. Perhaps I can walk along with you."

"I wasn't going out," answered Susan, confused. "I just tried these things on." She bit her lip, annoyed at having made this naïve admission.

"All the better then because I want to talk to you for a bit," the young man repeated.

Susan led him into the comfortable Milton living room. She put up a hand to remove the little hat but Bob stopped her.

"Please don't take it off," he begged. "It suits you. Do you know you look marvelous in that turnout?"

"Thank you," said Susan gravely. She was feasting her eyes on the precious outline of his lean face, crested with unruly fair hair.

"Sit down, won't you?" "I do much better standing" said Bob. "I've had the deuce of a time finding you. Why did you stage an escape scene that night of the ball? You didn't even leave a Cinderella slipper."

"There was nothing else to do," said Susan gravely.

"Nothing was settled," Susan said, trembling at his nearness. She could catch the scent of expensive tobacco and shaving soap and Russian leather. His blue eyes dancing wickedly, were dangerously close to hers.

"I thought you were bright," he mocked her. "I thought you knew what I was talking about." His voice lowered, softened. Into it crept the lover's note that Susan had heard once before.

"My girl," he muttered, covering her clasped hands with one of his own. "My own darling."

Susan's heart melted to him utterly but she sat, rigid and apparently composed.

"Sweetheart, look at me!" Bob commanded.

"Forgotten what?" The flush ran over her pale skin clear down to the point where the creamy throat was swallowed up in the aureole of pale fur.

"This—!" Susan indicated her outfit. "This is the costume I've chosen for my wedding."

"Your wedding! I won't have it," Dunbar stormed. "You belong to me and to nobody else."

CHARLES Ruggles, one of the real humourists of the Hollywood Studios in a typical pose as he appears in Husband's Holiday, the King's mid-week offering next week.

THAT "the old order changeth," and changeth very rapidly, is not more true than when applied to the talking picture world. Those silents of a decade or more ago that thrilled with their grossly exaggerated histrionics, their heroines registering emotion and glycerine tears with the sob stop pulled right out, and their slapstick comedy produced on the "When in doubt, throw a pie" system, moved their audiences not one whit less than the present day highly efficient films; yet today those old-timers bring only jeers and ironic cheers. "Screen Souvenirs," which Paramount are now resurrecting from the scrap heaps of past celluloid triumphs, are proof enough.

AN EVOLUTION.

IT is an evolution that was bound to come, especially in an industry only just out of its swaddling clothes, and it is hardly worth noting that the film to-day is a vastly different work to those old barnstormers when William S. Hart provided the thrills and Francis X. Bushman was the matinee idol. The interest lies in what the years have taught the film makers, what they have eschewed and added, and the various tricks of camera and direction that make the film to-day so interesting for the cinema enthusiast who subordinates story and acting to photography, and treatment when visiting a cinema theatre. It seems a reasonable assumption that the supply is controlled by the demand, in quality as well as quantity, and if that be so, it follows that the changes in film direction have come side-by-side with the changes in film sense of the great body for whom films are made.

SCENE from The Sin Of Madelon Claudet, featuring Helen Hayes and Neil Hamilton which will be unfolded to Queen's Theatre audiences on Sunday.

Evolution of Cinema from Mere Money-making Industry to Standard of Art Now InevitableCORRESPONDENT'S INTERESTING ANALYSIS.

NOTES AND COMMENTS BY "CELLULOID"

BREVITY is the soul of the well-produced film of to-day, and sobstuff and tears, no matter how much it may permeate the story, is not on the scenario. And the brevity of the modern film and the various dodges that film makers employ to obtain it, is more than anything else, where the present productions differ mostly from those of the pre-war period. That development alone would be a strong point for the movers of a debate that the public of to-day is more intelligent when viewing a film.

The craze for speed has undoubtedly influenced our tastes in the cinema, and the efficient mind, brought up in an atmosphere of high speed business and efficiency experts, is not impressed with the film that wastes hundreds of feet of film in superfluities. An audience to-day appreciates a director who leaves a little to their imagination: a man like von Sternberg who employs a jumbled superimposition of scenes to convey the passage of time, or a Mamoulian lavishing symbols to heighten the effect of his best shots. A director who indulges in wordy dialogue to convey an unimportant point or wastes hundreds of feet in portraying an every day act, insults the public's intelligence—and the public knows it.

AN ILLUSTRATION.

IN searching for illustrations, "Emma" springs most readily to mind. It is a magnificent piece of modern film fare that is thick with sugary sentiment and just the type of plot that pre-war directors would have grasped. Yet how different was Clarence Brown's treatment. There have been few recent films that demonstrate more the strides Hollywood has made. In it three deaths and it is chockful of anachronisms; scenes that in the good old days would have disposed of half the film. But audiences to-day will not swallow close-ups of heroines registering emotion like they did 10 years ago, and the death-bed scenes, which once would have been the feature, are dismissed with a few feet: just a few words or a simple shot to suggest them, yet there was never doubt.

THE audience of to-day does not have to see a sick-bed surrounded by walling relatives or a mutilated corpse to know that death has taken place. A quick shot of a mourning card, the reading of a will or a church service is all that is needed. Similarly a close-up of whirling train wheels or a liner at sea, indicates a journey, while the fluttering of the leaves off a calendar is only one of the many tricks for indicating the passage of time. In the old days, the corpse had to be shown, to place beyond any doubt that a death had taken place, while the flight of time was generally indicated by a crude and abrupt cut.

FUTURE INDICATIONS.

IT is curious that gangland films, as much as they have been criticised for their potential immoral influence on impressionable minds, have done much more for the advance of the artistry of the cinema, than any other theme. Two of such, "Quick Millions" and "The Secret Six" stand out prominently as 100 per cent, efficient films. Their story, of the rise from obscurity to gangland czarism, spread over a period of years and the elimination of the superfluous, while leaving only an unconnected series of flashes, was cinema artistry at its height. "Quick Millions" was years before its time, and so extreme in its efficiency, that it needed an alert mind to follow its many subtleties. Critics may condemn the plots of present-day talkies, declare they are timeworn and hackneyed and decry their entertainment value, but this highly efficient stateliness of modern films is without doubt, tending towards the higher education of the public and inculcating a sense of the subtle and an appreciation of the symbol. The first big step in the evolution was the elimination of the superfluous: recent films predict that the next change will be the judicious employment of the experimental camera and more imaginative directing leading towards a higher standard of cinema art.

NOW THEN ENGLAND!

THE foregoing is the able contribution of a correspondent, whose interest in films has obviously led him to study them more deeply and analytically than the majority of cinema-goers. The evolution of the cinema, though perhaps disappointingly slow to numbers of its enthusiastic followers (the chief reason for which can be found in that retarding influence "box-office receipts"), cannot be denied or ignored. As to whom are contributing to that progressive evolution from a money-making industry to an art is, perhaps, beside the point. Nevertheless, in their business-like and dollars-complex way American has done something. France too, through its Rene Clair, has given a taste of better things to come within the cinema, and Russian, if reports are to be accepted, has reached the very basis of the new and creative cinema. England's opportunity to do her share has not been lost: in fact she has a greater chance now and in the immediate future than ever before. But her studios and the industry as a whole must be reorganised and to a large extent centralised. Here is where a national institute can prove of the finest boon.

ANOTHER FAILURE.

BRITISH films have received such a cold reception from the critics in Hongkong that one feels annoyed to have to once again affix the label "failure" to a Twickenham production. Yet personally, I find it quite impossible to view At the Villa Rose in any other light. Heretofore,

VIVACIOUS Jeanette MacDonald and the irrepressible Maurice Chevalier in their latest success One Hour With You, which will be shown at the King's Theatre on Sunday week.

English films have been credited with the extenuating fact that the industry, not being so highly organised or technically equipped as the American studios, their productions must of necessity suffer in comparison. But the argument scarcely holds good with At the Villa Rose, in so far that it is a comparatively recent picture, and at least, produced at a time when the English studios were reported to be making big advances in technical efficiency.

MERELY STAGES SCENES.

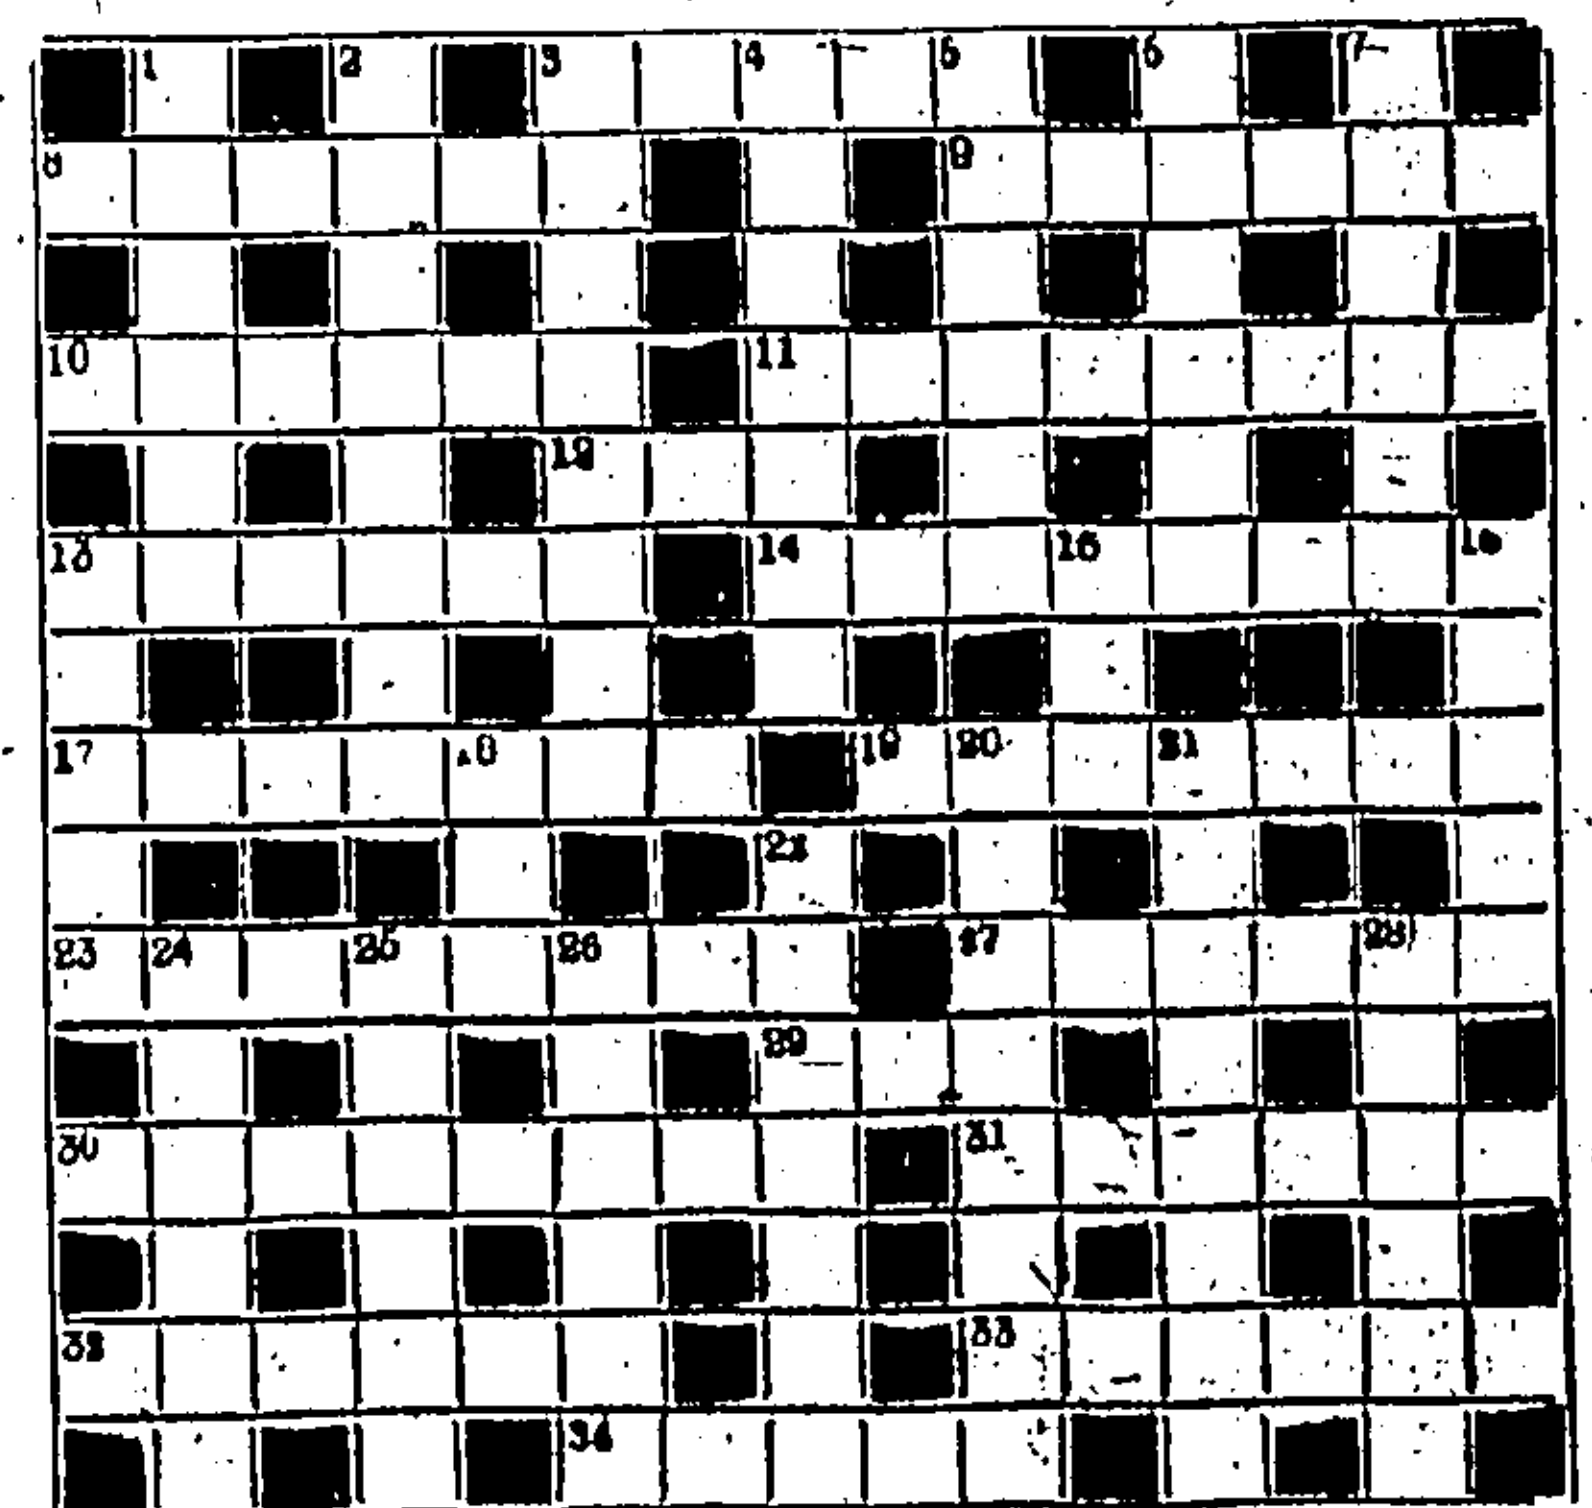

Yet what is the result? Merely another stage play transferred in its entirety and without embellishment to the screen. The enormous disadvantages accruing from this are easily distinguished. Camera work is stultified and I felt positively sorry for Blythe, the cameraman, who was obviously endeavouring to overcome the manifold inconveniences of stage settings, he had to resort to shots through lattice work to introduce colour to his photographs and found opportunity for but one angle shot and a really first rate close-up of Austin Trevor.

PERSONALITIES WANTED.

ONCE again the fact was forcibly brought home that the English screen is suffering from a dearth of real actresses. For the most part they are insipid, lack personality and are ill-chosen for their roles. Norah Baring was absolutely painful, her monotoned voice being only a little worse than her futile efforts to act a dramatic part. The director wanted hundreds of feet of valuable celluloid in registering inconsequential scenes and dialogue such as the arrival at the Villa of the woman with the bag and I sighed for Lubitsch or even Victor Saville in the many situations which implored delicate but strong treatment. My disappointment was not so much that the film failed to entertain me, but that it indicated how little has been the progress of Electra in her competition with the imaginative and efficient Hollywood studios.

RESULTS NEEDED

By degrees, tangible results look like being evolved, from the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, even if they may not represent everything that could be desired. Progress is indicated in the latest announcement, and that is surely something to the good. This gathering, together with the recent Lausanne parleys and the Ottawa Conference just opened, has attracted considerable notice. It is realised that despite the geographical separation of these three Conference centres, they are all concerned with inseparable aspects of one problem—to lift the world out of its present economic distress and help to restore international trade and prosperity.

Signor Mussolini, in a recent comment on these inter-governmental activities, stated that "Conferences of this kind are good and desirable institutions if they achieve results; otherwise they only fill the people of the world with a false hope, followed by even more intense disappointment and despair." He himself gave up attending these international gatherings because he found "there was so much ceremonial perplexity and vacillation." The interminable chain of Conferences on Reparations and War Debts which produced one definitive settlement after another must have convinced the statesmen of the world that further procrastination and evasion of the hard realities of bitter experience will only aggravate the deep-seated maladies which afflict the peoples. The delays, looked at one time likely to plunge the World Disarmament Conference into the danger of failure, and actual failure would destroy for a long period the chance of effectively controlling and minimising the danger and burden of huge competitive national armaments. The world muddle of to-day is the result of world madness in the past and it will continue so long as the nations are unable to co-operate on policies which they individually know to be the indispensable remedies. Even while Conferences are being arranged and held, the situation is becoming increasingly worse. To give a single illustration, world unemployment is far worse to-day than it was a year ago. It is estimated that there are now 11,000,000 unemployed in the United States, 7,000,000 in Germany, and 1,000,000 in Italy. Britain's unemployed total is 2,740,000. It is probably safe to say that in Europe and the United States alone, there are something like 25,000,000 persons out of work. And unless international decisions, which have been put off too long already, are taken in the near future, it is almost certain that the coming winter will bring with it another huge increase in unemployment, and still more impoverishment to the peoples generally.

The point of these observations is that the recent Lausanne discussions and the developments which are now occurring at Geneva must produce definite accomplishments if the world is to be helped out of the economic morass into which it has fallen. There is a call for the cancellation of war debts and reparations; a definite curtailment of expenditure on armaments, and a serious effort in the direction of cutting down trade barriers. These are the irreducible minima of international action necessary to secure the much-needed revival of trade. If really worthwhile results are not attained by these conferences, people will be justified in despairing of their statesmen and of their own future.

Has a new powder magazine arisen in Europe to usurp the unenviable reputation enjoyed before 1914 by the Balkans? Some observers of recent events point to more than one place where explosive material is being stored. Lord Buxton, in the House of Lords, recently declared that Poland and Yugoslavia are dangers to the peace of Europe. Both countries have large minority populations, people of different race, language and religion from those of the majority. The victimisation and oppression of these people, often carried out systematically, is sowing the seeds of future wars. Altogether in Europe, there are probably between thirty and fifty million grouped in minorities. When Germans or Ukrainians under Polish sovereignty are persistently persecuted, bonds of friendship between Germany and Poland are hardly strengthened. Similarly, with the Bulgarians and Albanians in Yugoslavia, the quarrels of individuals tend to become the quarrels of nations. The grievances of the minorities must not be under-estimated because they appear to be brought about by a series of pinpricks. Minor measures of discrimination are magnified by national passions. The closing of a German school in Upper Silesia by the Polish authorities becomes almost a casseus belli. The denial of political rights to a few hundreds or thousands of individuals is looked upon as a deadly insult to their fellows on the other side of the border. We still hardly appreciate the full extent to which pre-war minority problems contributed to the upheaval of 1914. It is true that the League of Nations is supposed to safeguard the interests of the chief minority populations of Europe. This, however, is a field in which the League can hardly claim to have been conspicuously successful. To start with, this unenviable job was flung upon Geneva almost as an afterthought in order to relieve the Powers of individual responsibility in the matter, and none of the statesmen at the Peace Conference thought of giving the League the necessary machinery. Again, when minorities questions have been raised in League Council, there has been temptation for foreign ministers to take the line of least resistance. Two out of every three petitions received have been turned down. Lord Buxton's

The U.S.S. Mindanao at 8 a.m. this morning, saluted the Commodore aboard the Chinese cruiser Hai Yang, the Hai Yung returning the salute at 8.5 a.m. The Portuguese gunboat Admaster fired a salute at 8.9 a.m., which was returned by the Hai Yung at 8.10 a.m.

Owing to the inclement weather, many people were yesterday, unable to see the musical parade which has been for the last three days held at the roof garden of Sincere Co. A special programme has been arranged for to-day to afford those who were disappointed, an opportunity to see the show which has proved an outstanding success. Times 2.30 and 8.30 p.m. as before.

It is feared that Mrs. Moon, who was involved in a motor accident at Tsun Wan on Wednesday evening, has sustained a fractured knee-cap. She has accordingly been admitted to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Moon, residing at 2, Cambray Building, was driving her car, No. 604, when it came in collision with a car which was being driven by Mrs. B. It was thought at the time that neither lady was hurt but it is now reported that Mrs. Moon is believed to have fractured her knee.

suggestion, supported by Lord Cecil, is that the League of Nations should appoint a committee of experts. On behalf of the British Government, Lord Hails-ham replied that the matter would be given careful consideration. It is important that something should be done. The mere fact that the minorities have a nominal court of appeal in the League of Nations acts at present as a safety valve. But, if that safety valve is continually blocked up, sooner or later an explosion is bound to occur.

THE UPRISING OF
THE YOUNG

By "SENTINEL"

THE hard-hitting articles by Cecil Rhodes to wake up Earl Grey—with whom he was staying at Government House in Bulawayo—at about 2 a.m., to ask him this question: "Do you ever think how lucky you were to be born an Englishman? You might have been a Mashona!"

But if I were a German in Germany to-day, I should certainly be wearing a brown shirt and shouting "Heil Hitler!" and living up to Machiavelli's downright advice, "All armed prophets have conquered and all the unarmed ones have been destroyed." There can be no doubt that the whole power of patriotic German youth is enlisted under the curious standards of Hitlerism with their swastika signs and that the Nazis will presently be in control of Prussia, which means control of the Reich. That is one of the inconvenient certainties which we like to overlook as long as possible.

The growth of Hitlerism in Germany is an almost exact parallel to the growth of Fascism in Italy, whether measured by election statistics or in any other way. And a more remote historic parallel to this German "Youth Movement," which has now become established as a Party with a militia to support it, is found in the secret organisations of young patriots which came into being after the dreadful humiliation of Jena and prepared the way for the armed revival of Prussia as a Great Power under the leadership of Father Blucher. [The late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in one of his captivating stories of, Brigadier Gerard gives an impressive picture of the German land silently making ready for revolt, almost in the spirit of Gambetta's saying in the dreary days when Revanche seemed to many a century distant: "Think of it ever, speak of it never!"]

The maxim: Youth will be served, might also be illustrated from the intimate history of post-war Poland and the Dictatorship of Marshal Pilsudski, once a Socialist and a revolutionary whose autobiography is as fascinating a document as Mussolini's, though less full of "sacred egoism" and picturesque similes. There is also the case of Young Japan.

But America, where the Continental idea of a faction with firearms is not as unfamiliar as it is in England, might conceivably improve on the Ku Klux Klan experiment on Fundamentalism with a blackjack. The American people have been deeply humiliated by the Lindbergh outrage and, in the economic sphere, by the impossibility of taxing beer as we do, because the whole profits of concocting and distributing that illegal refreshment is monopolised by the ubiquitous city gangs.

So we find several American journals of national consequence sending out an S O S appeal to the younger generation to start a campaign against political corruption, organised crime, and vote-buying legislation. Thus the best-known of American weeklies, which has a circulation of close on 3,000,000 and accordingly reflects the mentality of the average decent citizen, describes the present Congress as "a pack of frightened white rabbits with bewildered pink eyes," pursuing a policy of panic and compromise. All electors, who think that their views are not being honestly represented at Washington and in the lesser legislative capitals, are advised to address letters of protest to the men they sent there, which will feel like the impact of Micky Walker's left hook.

But this representative organ of nonpartisan opinion has small hope for better things from the older generation of voters. "They have stood," it goes on to say, "for organised crime, organised graft, and organised tax concession; some because they were too lazy to lift a hand against the system, others because they fancied they were gaining some personal advantage from it. With honourable exceptions they have been unwilling to touch our 'dirty politics,' and that is just what makes them dirty. But there are thousands of fine, intelligent young men and women, stranded by the depression and uncertain about their future, who can help clean up our dirty politics if they will." I sincerely hope America will find a young Hercules to cleanse the Augean stables of Transatlantic governance. And I am hopeful that she will—for, as Owen Wister pointed out at the time, it was the will-power of the young Americans which compelled the timid, time-serving professional politicians to

MAGISTRATEACTOR CAUSES MUCH AMUSEMENT

The histrionic abilities of a man named Wong Shing, described as an actor, did not avail him this morning when he was charged before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy with begging.

While admitting the offence, defendant said he had never done it before and would never do it again. Striking a pose, which was presumably calculated to impress, he said he was an actor specialising in old heroic parts and therefore had no occasion to beg. Last night, however, he developed a toothache, and seeing a European in the street, had ventured to ask him for twenty cents. He was not to know that the European he had approached was the Magistrate before whom he was now charged!

His Worship:—Yes, you met me in the street last night and asked me for twenty cents. I warned you that what you were doing was wrong, and I was just walking by, but you prevented me. You went down on the ground and caught hold of my coat.

Defendant:—No, no! How would I have dared to hold your coat? You are a Magistrate! (Laughter).

His Worship:—Anyhow, you did. You told me too that you were going up to Canton.

Defendant:—Oh, no!

Defendant caused a great deal of amusement in Court by the poses he adopted.

His Worship:—You can continue all that in prison. I fine you $10 or 14 days.

CHINESE PLANE
ARRIVESSTRUGGLE THROUGH THE GALE

Mr. Chen Min-lin, well known Chinese aviator and head of the Chinese Aviation Administration in Fokien, arrived at the Kai Tak Aerodrome yesterday travelling in an Avro-Avian plane. Mr. Chen recently flew from Fokien to Canton in the same machine travelling with an officer of the Nineteenth Route Army and arrived at Canton earlier this week.

Yesterday Mr. Chen left for Hongkong from Canton and it is understood that he encountered the gale but eventually landed safely. Mr. Chen will leave for Fokien as soon as the typhoon threat is over.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dangerous Streets.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—As a ratepayer, I wish some-one would draw the attention of the Roads Department of the P.W.D. to a few of our public streets, which are not only highly dangerous but a disgrace to those responsible for their upkeep. Not being motor traffic roads, I suppose they do not come under the heading of the considered streets.

Take Aberdeen Street, at the top from Caine Road to Staunton Street, and Shing Wong Street from Hollywood Road to Gough Street. I have seen many people, especially women, slip and roll for yards down these streets. At times, it is impossible to walk normally down these streets—the only way to get down is to go sideways. Hoping that something will be done before a really serious accident happens—Yours, etc., A. WALKER.

IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

should be to clear out channels of trade among themselves. For that purpose they need not measure too closely the relative value of the preferences given and received.

"If we all approach the problem with a view to seeing how much we can contribute to the common stock without detriment to our own national interests we shall not need to concern ourselves with the relative advantages obtained by each since we know that the increase in the purchasing power of any member of the Empire must show itself in increased prosperity of all."

Greater activity of Empire trade was the most hopeful means of stimulating a demand in world markets and of restoring a sound level of wholesale commodity prices.

PRICE LEVELS.

Mr. Baldwin emphasised that when he spoke of the Empire he was thinking not only of the Dominions and India but also of the Colonies. He said that among the factors which should operate towards the restoration of price levels were a recovery of confidence by traders, the provision of a market for their goods by the removal or limitation of existing barriers to trade, particularly arbitrary and erratic quota systems and exchange restrictions, a solution of the reparations and war debts problems, and a lessening of taxation and interest charges.

The United Kingdom Government placed before the conference as its general objective, the expansion of Empire trade by a lowering of the trade barriers as between the several members of the Empire. They believed such an objective to be the one best calculated to ensure the permanence and increased prosperity of the Empire.

HELPING WORLD AT-LARGE.

By reviving and strengthening trade within the Empire they would be serving the interests of civilisation as a whole and taking the most practical means of hastening the economic recovery of the world at large.

Mr. S. M. Bruce (Australia) and Mr. J. G. Coates (New Zealand) followed Mr. Baldwin and expressed the hopefulness of their countries that the conference would result in success.

GOLD STANDARD.

Mr. Havanaga (South Africa) considered that the world required a measure of value more stable than gold, but favoured the restoration of the gold standard.

Sir Atul Chatterjee (India), dwelt upon the impending Indian Federal constitution and said it was of great importance to the future of India that the scheme of Protection should be handed over to the new Government in full working order.

IRISH LEADER'S SPEECH.

After other delegates had given their blessing to the idea of closer Empire economic co-operation, all ears were strained to hear Mr. Sean O'Kelly, the Vice-President of the Irish Free State Executive Council, who indirectly alluded to the new British tariff against Ireland as likely to involve substantial changes in the direction of their trade.

Moreover, said Mr. O'Kelly, the Free State was economically a young country, and consequently it was difficult to see the lines upon which the Free State contribution to the common endeavour must proceed.

FIVE COMMITTEES.

The Conference adjourned for private committee work, a meeting of the heads of the delegations this evening deciding to establish five committees to deal with (1) the promotion of inter-Empire trade, (2) customs administration, (3) commercial relations with foreign nations, (4) monetary and financial questions, and (5) methods of economic co-operation. —Reuter.

WAR WITH TIBET

LAST STRONGHOLD TAKEN BY SICHUANSE

Shanghai, July 21.

Nanking has received a long telegram from Liu Wen-huei, of Szechuan, reporting the latest development in the Sikang fighting and the capture of the last Tibetan stronghold, the Tachik moqatery, by the Szechuanese troops.

Liu Wen-huei reports that the Tibetans are consolidating at Tachik where reinforcements are massing for a counter-attack, which is expected shortly. —Reuter.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

It is not good for actors to mingle too much with the general public, in the opinion of Lewis Stone. "The public falls in love with the character you play, never with the individual," asserted the distinguished screen actor in a recent interview. "The result is that when a moviegoer meets an actor in private life he is invariably disappointed. He expects to meet a person resembling and acting like a character in a specific story he has seen on the screen, whereas, away from his grease paint, an actor becomes just one of the boys."

"And this rule works both ways," continued Stone. "It is hard on an actor to meet members of the public, to bask in their pleasure in his work and then to see a puzzled light come into their eyes. This puzzled going public expects too much of an actor when they meet him face to face. They have seen him in a picture, acting at a high pitch of dramatic fervor, and then when they meet the same actor on the golf course, at a party, they find him just another labourer, like themselves, relaxing comfortably from a day's work."

"The actor's business is to create an illusion. The better illusion, he creates, the better actor he is. And no matter how fine a fellow an actor may be personally, he cannot in his periods of relaxation hope to meet the exaggeratedly heroic ideals which his fans hold up for him."

Stone has increasingly gone in for versatile characterizations in his screen work. In his latest vehicle "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," which will be screened at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday, he plays the unusual part of a bogus Count who turns out to be the cleverest jewel thief in all Europe. The picture, which serves to introduce the New York stage star, Helen Hayes, to talkies, was adapted from the Edward Knoblock stage hit, "The Lullaby," and was directed by Edgar Selwyn. Stone's fellow cast members include Neil Hamilton, Cliff Edwards, Jean Hersholt and Marie Prevost.

"My Sin."

Can you define "It"?—No? Well, nobody can adequately. It is one of those words one feels, just senses; yet "it" has become an exceedingly forceful in different personality. It is like that other word "charm," yet is entirely lacking in its descriptive significance. But we all instantly recognize both qualities when we see a person possessing either "It" or "charm."

The King's Theatre opens next Sunday with the brilliantly fascinating picture drama, "My Sin," with Tallulah Bankhead in the stellar role, radiating both "It" and "charm" at high potential.

Tallulah Bankhead has the verve of the high-light blonde, the "charm" of impelling beauty, finely cut and exquisitely moulded in both face and figure and that hypnotic allurements which is called "It."

From her first flash on the screen, Tallulah captures the mind, intrigues the imagination and leads one through the intricacies of a dramatic story, touching the depths of emotional despair and reaching the heights of an intellectual and social regeneration.

Frederic March, co-starring with Miss Bankhead, has the reputation of being fully adequate to his roles.

"Honky Tonk" Sophie. It is the settled conviction of Sophie Tucker that mornings were not made for work. It was "borne in on her" with particular force she says, when she went to Warner Brothers' studio in Hollywood and commenced work in the talking singing Vitaphone production, "Honky Tonk," which is now playing at the Queen's in conjunction with Long Tack Sam's wonderful act.

"For twenty-two years," said Sophie, "I worked in vaudeville and in night clubs, and in neither case was I ever able to retire early."

"Night clubs, always remained open until the wee small hours, and when I was in vaudeville there was much to do after I left the theatre. Not only must I eat, but there were new songs to try over, and many preparations to make for the morrow."

"Consequently, when I started to make 'Honky Tonk' I found myself totally unable to jump into the work early in the morning. The habit of twenty-two years could not be changed overnight."

"And so, after the first week of production, we started work at 1 P.M. and continued from then on until rest of the company were worn out. At about that time I was just getting what I wanted, and was enjoying my work to the utmost, especially when we were making the scenes where I was singing in the roaring big night club that plays such an important part in 'Honky Tonk.'"

"Heartbreak." True romance, as any dramatist knows, require a proper setting. Then, to flourish, as they tell us, it must have a beautiful heroine stirring to the imagination and end of a hero of surpassing bravery. But, for romance to live, the vital element is still lacking. That is opposition. Without opposition, romance withers and dies of its own sentimentalities. This is not a solemn column from "Advice to the Lovelorn," nor a disavowal of the psychology of the affections. Merely a prelude to the fact that "Heartbreak," Fox drama which co-stars Charles Farrell and Madge Evans and is now showing at the King's Theatre, is said to be an outstanding example of those elements carried out in a beautiful romance which becomes almost hopelessly tangled in the most trying kind of conflict.

For its romantic setting, the locale of the drama is Vienna. Vienna home of the waltz, city of beautiful women, scene of gaiety, charm, dreams—romance! The heroine, you remember it is understood she must be beautiful is Madge Evans, lovely

LYTTON'S ILLNESS

BE SATISFACTORY

Peking, July 21.

The Earl of Lytton this evening still had a slight fever, a temperature of 37.8, and was somewhat less comfortable, feeling little pain. His general condition however is satisfactory.

At present he is receiving no visitors as he has been ordered a complete rest from all work.

The duration of his illness is uncertain, but it is hoped it will not be more than a week or 10 days.

Meanwhile the other members of the Commission has settled down to their labours to complete the final stage of the report. They will remain at Peking pending Lord Lytton's recovery. —Reuter's Special.

golden-haired, blue-eyed, emotional actress, but recently returned to the screen after a lapse of years during which time she "grew up" from childhood roles. Miss Evans, you will recall, was the famous child star of some ten years ago. Charles Farrell is the hero. As a handsome, educated, wealthy young American diplomat in the Vienna Embassy, he meets and is charmed by Miss Evans in the role of an Austrian countess.

Then enters the opposition, "Heartbreak," quite in keeping with the depth of its romance, presents conflict three-fold: mistrust, jealousy, and inevitable foes of romance. Paul Cavanagh, Farrell's rival in love, provides the elements of jealousy. The war, which separates the sweethearts and sends the friends at each other's throats, is the final blow that all but crushes their hopes of eventual happiness, thus fulfilling all requisites of true romance.

Film's Greatest Thriller.

A half-cemented doctor, intent on crossing the blood of a gigantic ape with that of a living girl, animates the terrifying story of "Murders in The Rue Morgue," Universal's strange drama which comes to the Central Theatre to-day, with Sidney Fox and Bela Lugosi in the leading roles. It is the famous Edgar Allan Poe story renovated for the screen. Rumor from Hollywood says "It's a Dracula" and "Frankenstein" rolled into one and churned together in an ice cream freezer.

The story is laid in Paris in the year 1840, and the sinister Dr. Mirakle, impersonated by Lugosi, causes the death of three young women in his mad experiments, until the dumb affection of the gorilla is attracted by Miss Fox, in the character of Camille L'Espanaye. Mirakle, feeling that Camille will form an ideal subject for further experiments, captures the girl with the assistance of the ape, and the ensuing events, it is said, made of "Murders in The Rue Morgue" the most gruesomely thrilling picture in the history of the talking screen. The climax of the story takes place on the roof-tops of Paris, in scenes which are said to be filled with suspense and far-moving drama.

Lugosi makes Dr. Mirakle an even more menacing figure than "Dracula" the role in which he created a sensation last season, and Miss Fox brings to the screen the high ability and girlish beauty which have already marked her as one of the coming stars of the motion picture. "Murders in The Rue Morgue" was directed by Robert Florey, and other prominent roles in the picture are played by Louis Wayoff, Brandon Hurst, Bert Roach, Betty Ross Clark, Noble Johnson, and D'Arcy Corrigan.

YORKSHIRE GIANTS OF THE LONG AGO

KENT FIND WINNING
WAY AGAINSECOND XI BOWLER
TRUNDLES OUT
LEICESTERGLOUCESTER LOSE TO SURREY

London, July 21.
Kent, seriously threatened by Sussex and Yorkshire in the struggle for leadership in the county cricket table, somewhat consolidated their position by defeating Leicester by nine wickets in two days in the second match of the Maidstone festival.

Alan Watt, the Kent League
goalkeeper, and Club and Ground player, enjoyed a small triumph
with the ball for the "Hop" county, capturing five of Leicester's second innings wickets for 24 runs.

Armstrong stood out as the prominent performer for the losers, scoring a fine century in Leicester's
first knock which realised 226.
Armstrong's contribution was 115.

Kent failed by five runs to reach the 300 mark in their reply, but it was sufficient, Leicester collapsing
so disastrously in the second attempt as to be dismissed for 83, leaving the home team to score 16
to win.

BROWN AND GODDARD

Surrey took only two days to defeat Gloucester by 49 runs in a

F. R. Brown, the Surrey bowler match featured by some extraordinary fine bowling on the part of Goddard and Brown. The former captured 11 for 109 (6 for 39 in the first innings when Surrey scored 156, and 5 for 70 in the return visit, when the Londoners
total was 202).

F. R. Brown, the Surrey bowler
was even more successful taking a dozen wickets during the match
for 87 runs. His initial analysis was 6 for 31, when Gloucester aggregated 114, and he helped to put Hammond and his men out a second time for 195 by capturing 6 wickets for 56 runs.—Reuter.

OF OLD-TIMERSFAMOUS PAST ACHIEVEMENTS
REVIEWED

VERITY A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

(BY "HISTORICUS")

HEDLEY VERITY'S wonderful feat in taking 10
wickets for 10 runs in the Yorkshire v. Notts match at Leeds just concluded, which was given such prominence in the columns of the Hongkong Telegraph
has prompted me to look up the various outstanding performances of some of his Yorkshire predecessors.

In his "History of Yorkshire County Cricket, 1883-1903,"
the Rev. R. S. Holmes remarks:—"The fact is Yorkshire's supply of bowlers has always been inexhaustible"; and Yorkshire records serve to show the truth of this statement.

The Yorkshire County Cricket Club
was formed in 1803, but Yorkshire possessed notable cricketers long before that date.

One of the most famous bowlers
they ever had was George Freeman
(a real "speed merchant") who played for Yorkshire (with various interludes when he could not appear owing to business engagements) from 1855 to 1881, during which period he took 218 wickets for an average of 10.03
per wicket. Two of his finest performances took place in 1867 and 1868,
in which years in playing against Lancashire, he captured 7 of their wickets for 10 runs and 8 for 11
respectively. In the 1863 match Tom Emmett and he bowled unchanged
throughout the game, and between them, hit the stumps no less than 18 times, the Lancashire totals being 30
and 34!

Regarding his merits as a bowler,
the Rev. R. S. Holmes, in his work above referred to, says that it is sufficient to quote the combined
testimony of Dr. W. G. Grace and Richard Duff that he was the finest fast bowler they had ever played against.

EMMETT'S FEATS.

Tom Emmett, who was Freeman's
bowling partner on various occasions,
and who played for Yorkshire during the period 1866 to 1888 and obtained
1,265 wickets for 12.68 runs each, could show the following performances.

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1866	4	for 7	Surrey
1868	0	for 13	Lancashire
1869	7	for 15	Cambridge
1870	9	for 23	Surrey
1871	7	for 9	Sussex
1872	3	for 9	Gloucestershire
1873	3	for 9	Gloucestershire
1874	3	for 22	Surrey
1875	8	for 10	Australians
1876	4	for 10	Lancashire

The Rev. R. S. Holmes, in the above mentioned history, relates that when Emmett and Freeman were on together, Dr. W. G. Grace stated that he realised that 100 runs made against them was something to be proud of.

ANOTHER FAST BOWLER.

Freeman's successor as a fast
bowler, was Allen Hill, who, playing for Yorkshire against Surrey in his initial match, captured 12 wickets (all clean bowled) for 57.

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1874	6	for 9	United South (whose team included Dr. G. G. and Mr. G. F. Lance and also the renowned Willsher).
1875	4	for 11	Lancashire
1876	4	for 8	Gloucestershire
1877	6	for 18	Middlesex
1878	6	for 18	M.C.C.

He played from 1871 to 1883, and in all captured 563 wickets at an average per wicket of 12.70.

His successor was G. P. Harrison
(1883 to 1891) who took 295 wickets
at an average per wicket of 14.48 and in his first season distinguished himself against Lancashire by taking 7
wickets for 43 in the first match that year, and 6 for 22 in the second.

In his last year—1891—he captured
5 Middlesex wickets for 14.

ULYETT & WAINWRIGHT.

In the meantime, George Ulyett
(1873-1893), though more famous as a batsman, had given evidence of his capacity as a bowler in the following instances:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1874	4	for 11	All England
1875	7	for 19	Sussex
1876	3	for 9	Notts
1877	3	for 9	Surrey
1878	3	for 4	Lancashire—against whom the following year he accomplished the "hat-trick".
1879	5	for 10	Australians

Altogether he captured 484 wickets
for 18.18 runs a piece.

I must not forget "Billy" Bates
(1877-1887) who was a fine batsman
as well as a good bowler, taking 630 wickets for an average of 16.70. His main bowling feats were:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1878	4	for 11	Sussex
1879	0	for 11	Middlesex
1880	8	for 21	Surrey
1881	0	for 15	Derbyshire
1882	0	for 12	Notts
1883	0	for 10	Kent
1884	0	for 10	Notts
1885	0	for 9	Surrey

Harrison's successor was Wainwright (1888-1902), who took 1,173
wickets at an average per wicket of 17.24, and placed the following figures
to his credit:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1888	4	for 8	Warwickshire
1889	4	for 12	Warwickshire
1890	2	for 12	Middlesex
1891	10	for 81	Staffordshire
1892	4	for 14	Middlesex
1893	4	for 14	Essex

Playing against Sussex at Dew-bury in 1894, he brought the match
to a summary conclusion by taking
including the performance of the "hat trick". In the whole match he obtained 13 wickets for 38 runs.

BRILLIANT HIRST.

Wainwright was for some time a contemporary of George Hirst, who played for Yorkshire from 1889 to 1919, taking 2,569 wickets for 17.88
runs apiece.

Hirst's most remarkable bowling feats were:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1892	6	for 16	Sussex
1892	5	for 12	Derbyshire
1893	6	for 11	Notts
1894	6	for 0	Somerset
1895	7	for 16	Essex
1896	4	for 7	Surrey
1897	7	for 12	Essex
1898	5	for 9	Australians
1899	7	for 10	Gloucestershire
1900	7	for 18	Leicestershire
1901	8	for 26	Leicestershire
1902	6	for 12	Northamptonshire
1903	6	for 7	Lancashire
1910	0	for 23	Warwickshire
1911	0	for 41	Warwickshire

He never succeeded in capturing all 10 wickets in an innings, but came very near doing so in 1910 against
Schofield Haigh taking the other wicket, and jocularly remarking when Hirst asked for the ball on the conclusion of the game, "Well George, I think I ought to have half as I took
the remaining wicket!"

His nine wickets for 41 against Worcestershire in 1911 were obtained
on a perfect wicket, and 8 of them were "clean-bowled."

Mention must also be made of
Hon. (now Rt. Hon. Sir) F. S. Jackson (1890-1907) whose record shows 506 wickets at a cost of 19.18 per wicket. Two of his best pieces of bowling occurred in 1902, when he took 8 Lancashire wickets for 18 runs and 6 for 12 against the Australians.

SLOW BOWLERS.

Turning to the slow bowlers, Yorkshire were fortunate in securing the services more or less on one after another of Peate, Peel and Rhodes
(and now in turn Verity).

Of the respective merits of Peate,
Peel and Rhodes, the views of David
Hunter, the old Yorkshire wicket-keeper (who "kept" for Yorkshire from 1888 to 1909 and had often played against Peate in local cricket) are set out in the "History of Yorkshire County Cricket, 1903-1923" by Mr. A. W. Pullin ("Old Ebor") who
gives them as follows:

"I always say that Peate was the finest left-arm bowler I ever saw. He had a beautiful action and was extraordinarily accurate, seldom, if ever, losing his length.
Peel I should place second, and Wilfred Rhodes third. Bowler though he is, he is the third. But I will say this of Rhodes—in the last three years his length bowling has been better than it ever was. He may not spin the ball so much as he used to do
but he keeps a perfect length—more consistently. Hardly do you see him send down a short one on the leg side—unless there is a trap in it!"

Peate played for Yorkshire from 1879 to 1887—taking 810 wickets for 12.55 per wicket. His best performances were:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1879	0	for 14	Lancashire
1880	8	for 24	Lancashire
1881	0	for 5	Surrey
1884	0	for 13	Gloucestershire

His feat, in taking 8 wickets for 5 runs against Surrey in 1883 was a remarkable one, as was the match
itself, Yorkshire, after scoring 110,
dismissed Surrey for 31 and 82.

In the same year (1883), Peate and Harrison dismissed Kent for 05 and 70 after Yorkshire had made 275—their bowling figures for the match being—

Harrison 10 wickets for 55.
Peate 9 wickets for 70.

A VICTORY RECALLED.

Almost as wonderful as Peate's above feat against Surrey was his achievement in taking six wickets for 13 against Gloucestershire in 1884.
"Old Ebor" refers to it in his Yorkshire Cricket History, and narrates it in Peate's own words. Yorkshire's first innings score of 128 had been passed by Gloucestershire with 179,
and Yorkshire in their second innings had fared very badly at the end of the second day's play. That evening both teams were entertained at a banquet given by a certain noblemen, and in the course of the speech making Dr. W. G. Grace was inclined to speak of Gloucestershire's prospective victory, to which Tom Emmett had replied, "No doctor, we are Yorkshiremen and we have never lost until the last run is got or wicket taken."

Peate, relating what followed, remarked "Well, the next day Tom (Emmett), Pinder, Hill and I scored nicely and we sent them in to get 85 runs. It was 42 so many. They scored 43 and we won by 41. My bowling on that occasion was represented by six wickets for 13 runs.
I got the wickets of Mr. E. M. Grace,
Mr. Townsend and Painter with successive deliveries."

In a letter written by old Bob Thoms to "Old Ebor" (quoted in the latter's above work) in 1898, the former remarks "It was at my end
(he was one of the umpires) that Ted Peate did his sensational bit of trundling (in 1884) at Moreton-in-the-Marsh v. Gloucestershire and I have oft told the incident—how he "pegged" away, over after over on the offside with a length to a barley corn,
and never let a single ball drop on the long side throughout that memorable affair. Ted was as a left medium, has never been excelled."

PEEL'S RECORD.

Peel's years of service for Yorkshire covered the period 1882-1897.
He captured 1,550 wickets for an average of 15.09. His best analyses were—

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1887	5	for 14	Kent
1887	5	for 4	Leicestershire
1888	8	for 12	Notts
1892	5	for 7	Derbyshire
1895	0	for 22	Somerset

One of his greatest feats was in the Notts match at Sheffield in 1888, when, due to his "trundling", Notts were "skittled" out for 24 and 58, Yorkshire winning by 10 wickets.
Peel taking in the match 14 wickets for 33 runs.

Playing for England against the Australians in the three matches which took place in 1888, he was very successful, as the following shows:—

First Match	4 wickets for 36
and	4 wickets for 14
Second Match	1 wicket for 14
and	4 wickets for 49
Third Match	7 wickets for 31
and	4 wickets for 37

making a total of 24 wickets for 181 runs, i.e. at a cost of a little over 7 runs per wicket.

In Yorkshire's first match in 1890 against the Australians, he took 6 wickets for 34 runs in the first innings and 6 for 35 in the second innings, while playing for England against Australia in 1896 he captured 6 wickets for 23 in the second innings.

RHODES' 4,000 WICKETS.

Rhodes, who first played for Yorkshire in 1889 and only retired two years ago, has an immense bowling achievement to his credit, having captured 3,608 wickets for an average of 16 runs per wicket in all first-class matches in England and abroad his total number of wickets is 4,137.

His first County match was against Somerset at Bath, when he captured
5 wickets for 11 runs, and as Mr.
Pullin records in his History of Yorkshire County Cricket above mentioned, old Bob Thoms, one of the Umpires at that match, presented him with the ball at the conclusion of the game as a token of his accomplishment.

Some of his best efforts were:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1889	0	for 28	Gloucestershire
1889	0	for 28	Essex
1890	8	for 23	Hampshire
1891	6	for 22	Gloucestershire
1891	7	for 20	Gloucestershire
1892	8	for 26	Kent
1894	4	for 12	Essex
1895	6	for 0	Essex
1896	0	for 17	Leicestershire
1897	6	for 12	Derbyshire
1901	7	for 16	Derbyshire
1911	7	for 10	Derbyshire
1914	7	for 10	Derbyshire
1919	4	for 6	Gloucestershire
1920	4	for 6	Northamptonshire
1923	5	for 8	Essex
1923	7	for 16	Gloucestershire
1924	7	for 39	Middlesex
1925	0	for 30	Essex
1925	7	for 38	Notts

SCHOFIELD HAIGH.

Schofield Haigh commenced his career with Yorkshire in 1895 and continued to play for them until 1923. During that period he obtained
1,016 wickets for 15.42 runs each.
He took 8 Australian wickets for 78 at Bradford in 1896 and followed this up in 1897 by capturing 7 Surrey wickets for 17 on the Hendingley Ground at Leeds. On the day he performed this feat, Peate (the hero of the 1883 Surrey debacle previously referred to) was standing on the pavilion watching the turn of events, and as the wickets began to fall, a friend of mine who was standing by his side, began to chaff him, suggesting that his "record" would be beaten. "Nay," replied Peate, "it'll stand for many a long day yet".
Haigh's record shows in addition to the foregoing, the following figures:—

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1898	8	for 21	Hampshire
1901	4	for 20	Notts
1902	4	for 10	Gloucestershire
1903	5	for 18	Essex
1907	5	for 9	Derbyshire
1909	7	for 13	Warwickshire
1909	6	for 13	Surrey
1909	7	for 20	Lancashire
1909	7	for 11	Surrey
1910	3	for 2	Warwickshire
1911	7	for 10	Sussex
1912	5	for 14	Somerset
1912	0	for 14	Australians
1912	0	for 25	Gloucestershire

Playing for Yorkshire against the Australians at Bradford in 1912, he captured 5 wickets for 22 runs in the first innings, and 6 for 14 in the second—his analyses reading:

consent to intervention in the German War.

Whether or not "youth politics" could be made a pivotal factor in England is a question difficult to decide. Diarrell's "Young England" idea was effective enough in its day. But I seem to have heard of a League of Youth, headed by a certain Sir Oswald Mosley, that does not provide an impressive.

"TELEGRAPH" ART SUPPLEMENT

Numerous Pictures To-Morrow

To-morrow's issue of the Telegraph Pictorial Supplement will contain numerous pictures of topical interest. There will again be a full page of entries in our Summer Photo Competition, in addition to news pictures.

Among sporting illustrations will be photos of the lawn bowls match between Civil Service and the K.B.G.C., and a group of the Ching Hwa College inter-class football champions.

The wedding of Mr. W. H. Wallond and Miss J. M. Weiss will be illustrated by a group of the bridal party, while another interesting picture will be a dinner in honour of Mr. Chu Ching-lan, who has been taking an active interest in the South China peace movement.

Other pictures will include a photo of a big cod fish, weighing 34 lbs., caught at Castle Peak last week.

precedent. It attracted many bright young things, but merely furnished a sort of humorous footnote to the complex propaganda of the Labour Party. But there can be no doubt that the catastrophic victory of the National Government a few months ago was largely due to the revolt of innumerable young Socialists.

THE BIG STICK IN GERMANY

VON PAPPEN SO FAR SUCCESSFUL

Berlin, July 21.

Herr Von Pappen's "Big Stick" policy has, up to the present, been entirely successful in Prussia and there is no reason to doubt that it will continue so, as he has the army and police with him and plenty of officials to replace the malcontents and those dismissed.

The opposition is powerless. Trade Union leaders have instructed the masses to confine themselves to winning the election on the 31st inst.

The Communist party, numbering 5,000,000, may be declared illegal.

Herr Von Pappen is not worrying over the election as he is sure that no one party will get an absolute majority.

Now that the big fry like Herr Braun and Herr Severing have been removed, the lesser officials are being weeded out, with the warm approval of the Nazis who are overjoyed at almost controlling Prussia without having a visible mandate from the electors.

The next few weeks will be interesting, but it is practically certain that there will be no serious revolt against Germany while revolts remain verboten.—Reuter.

Communist Paper Suspended.

Berlin, July 21.

The Communist paper "Rote-fahne" did not appear today as its office was closed by the police following the discovery there of a provocative pamphlet intended for street distribution.—Reuter.

PAINS AFTER EATING
STOP AT ONCE!

IT'S not the food you eat which causes pain, but the excess stomach acid which sets up food fermentation, generates painful gases and attacks the delicate stomach lining. This excess acid must, therefore, be neutralised before you can expect any relief. To do this, take a little 'Bisurated' Magnesia after meals or whenever pain is felt. The dangerous acid is immediately neutralised and all pains and discomfort cease at once. 'Bisurated' Magnesia is used and prescribed by doctors all over the world because it is the one certain cure for digestive pains after eating.

'BISURATED' MAGNESIA
Powder and Tablets from all chemists.

THE experiences of the past few years have proved how rapidly the accumulations of a lifetime can be seriously depreciated—or swept away. Life insurance is the one means by which such losses to your estate can be immediately offset. Its function is two-fold—a competence if you live or an estate at death.

Let us submit a contract suitable to your requirements.

TO-DAY AT THE CENTRAL

A classic of crime becomes the Screen's Epic of Horror! Never before has the screen dared to reveal such a story of fascinating horror... such a terrific tale of murder and mad experiments by Dr. Mirakle it takes courage to see it, but you'll never forget what you experience.

"From open we came," cried the mad scientist, "and we shall see our victims!" A madman's mad quest for a bride for the gods... a people aroused... a city reeled... Never in all your theatre-going have you seen anything like EDGAR ALLAN POE'S greatest story brought to the screen.

HEAVY FINE FOR MRS. BARNEY.

UNLAWFUL POSSESSION OF REVOLVER

London, July 21.
A fine of £50, with £10 10s. costs, was imposed on Mrs. Elvira Barney at the Westminster Police Court to-day, for the unlawful possession of the revolver which figured in the recent murder charge against her. Mrs. Barney, wife of John Barney the singer, now touring America, and daughter of Sir John Mullens, prominent Government broker, is a prominent London society woman. She was recently acquitted on a charge of having murdered Michael Scott Stephen, son of a Kent magistrate, after a cocktail party at a Knightsbridge flat.—Reuter.

SIGNOR GRANDI IN NEW ROLE

AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN

Rome, July 21. Signor Grandi, who provided a shock by resigning the post of Foreign Minister in the Fascist Cabinet on Wednesday, has been appointed Italian Ambassador in London, as forecast.

Signor Grandi was among the first to join the Fascist Party and has always been one of its most distinguished and popular figures, second only to Mussolini himself. He is not yet forty years of age, but has proved on numerous occasions that he has, in no small measure, the qualities of a statesman and a diplomat.

His appointment to the London Embassy will be warmly welcomed, although he will be missed from the councils of the League of Nations.—Reuter.

The Italian Embassy has been in care of a Charge d'Affaires since the sudden death a few weeks ago of Signor Bordonaro.

During Signor Grandi's term as Foreign Minister, Anglo-Italian collaboration on most political issues of importance has been a marked feature of international conferences and one which British statesmen have highly valued.—British Wireless.

LIVELY CHASE OF THIEF

MAN ALMOST GETS AWAY

At about 5 o'clock this morning, a thief gained entrance through an open window to the residence of Mr. E. Haroon, at 404, Lockhart Road, first floor.

The intruder was spotted by Mr. I. Haroon whilst in the act of gathering clothes together, and with the aid of Mr. N. Ahmed the thief was overpowered and bound up.

Messrs. I. Haroon and N. Ahmed later took the intruder to the Police Station, but on the way, whilst passing a lane, the man made a desperate attempt to get free. He managed to elude his pursuers for a time, but after a

STUBBS ROAD ACCIDENT

DANGEROUS DRIVING SEQUEL

Wong Chu-foo, a driver in the employ of the owner of private car 58, appeared on a summons before Mr. Schofield this morning, charging him with dangerous driving in Stubbs Road on the afternoon of the 10th instant.

Sergt. Doyle, who was out on patrol on his cycle, said he had to apply his brakes on coming upon two cars, one of which, driven by the defendant, was overtaking and passing the other.

Defendant said he was following in the wake of another car driven by a European who repeatedly signalled to him to pass. He did so only on the third time of signalling.

His Worship imposed a fine of $25.

Subsequently Mr. Horace Lo appeared for the defendant and asked for a reduction of the fine, pointing to the extenuating circumstance in the invitation of the European to defendant to pass. It was natural, Mr. Lo argued, that the defendant should have accepted such an invitation coming as it did from a man on whose judgment he thought he might rely.

His Worship replied, that he could not take that circumstance into consideration and confirmed his previous decision.

A BEACH GALA.

M. C. L. PLAN AT REPULSE BAY FOR SEPTEMBER

The Hongkong Women's Guild and Ministering Children's League are planning another beach gala at Repulse Bay, similar to the successful function held last year. The date has been fixed for September 6, but if the weather is unpromising for that day it will be held on September 13.

As last year, the gala is intended primarily for children, but there will probably be parades, etc., for grown-ups.

During the chase, both pursuers had rather nasty falls, Mr. Ahmed being badly cut about the hand, while Mr. Haroon received abrasions to his legs.

BANK APPEAL CASE

COURT RESERVES JUDGMENT

The Full Court of Appeal this morning reserved judgment in the case in which the Banque Chinoise pour le Commerce et l'Industrie sought to quash the judgment of Mr. Justice Wood who awarded $42,000 to Mrs. Chu Shuk as damages for the alleged wrongful sale of her property under a deed of mortgage.

One hour was sufficient for Mr. Jenkin in which to reply to the three main points in the case for the plaintiff respondent. In turn he dealt with the construction of the deed, the consent of the plaintiff to banking facilities, and the correct valuation of the property.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K. C. and Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Messrs Hastings, Denny and Bowley, appeared for the French Bank. Mr. Eldon Potter, K. C., with Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by G. R. Hall Brutton and Company appeared for the plaintiff.

JEHOL INVASION UPROAR

FEELING AGAIN ROUSED

NANKING ACTION DEMANDED

Shanghai, July 22.
The Japanese aerial bombardment of Chaoyong and the belief that Japan is contemplating the invasion of Jehol, a province of China Proper, has aroused strong anti-Japanese passions which had appeared to be on the wane.

The patriotism of the Chinese public in Shanghai has been stirred by the Jehol incidents and a meeting of the Shanghai Federation of Chinese Citizens was held yesterday afternoon, when the Japanese were bitterly attacked, and it was decided to send representatives to Nanking to demand action by the authorities.

The representatives were instructed to demand that the National Government take immediate steps for the defence of Jehol and North China and for the recovery of the lost territory of Manchuria.

The wave of feeling has also permeated to certain Government quarters.

LEADER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Tseng Chung-ming, the Vice-Minister of Railways, arrived in Shanghai yesterday morning, his mission being that of soliciting the opinions of the various Government leaders in regard to the situation in Jehol.

Interviewed regarding the likely policy of the National Government concerning the Japanese invasion of Jehol, Mr. Tseng Chung-ming stated that the Nanking Government was prepared to concentrate its entire military force for the defence of Jehol and North China.—Reuter.

JEHOL SITUATION EASIER.

Peking, July 22.

THE IMPERIAL ECONOMIC CONFERENCE at Ottawa was formally opened with impressive ceremonial in the Parliament Building yesterday, the speeches of the heads of the delegations revealing common consent to the principle of closer economic co-operation.

Mr. Sean O'Kelly, the Irish Free State delegate, was no more than mildly provocative, while suggesting that the new British duties could only mean a substantial change in the direction of Anglo-Irish trade.

IRELAND THE YOUNG UNHOPEFUL

Ottawa, July 21.
An auspicious start was to-day given to the Imperial Economic Conference. The contacts renewed and established between Empire statesmen and the preliminary conversations in Ottawa have served to create a spirit of optimism and determination, which characterised the speeches at to-day's opening ceremony.

The proceedings were marked by impressive ceremonial, the Governor General of Canada, Lord Bessborough, being accompanied by an escort of Dragoons and Guardsmen in full dress uniform. The Governor-General read the following message from the King:

KING'S MESSAGE.

"My thoughts and prayers are with the delegates of my Governments who are gathered in conference to-day to explore the means by which they may promote the prosperity of the peoples of this great Empire. At this conference you are opening a new page of history on which, within a few weeks, will be written a record of a determined effort to solve the difficulties weighing so heavily not only upon us but the whole world."

"It is my earnest hope that when this Conference closes there will be a record of results worthily reflecting the frankness, sincerity and spirit of helpfulness with which I feel confident your deliberations will be conducted. The British Empire is based on the principle of cooperation and it is now your common purpose to give the fullest possible effect to that principle in the economic sphere. By so doing you will set in motion beneficial forces within the British Commonwealth which may well extend their impulse also to the world at large. I pray that you may be given clear insight and strength of purpose for these ends."

LOYAL RESOLUTION.

A resolution that a reply be sent expressing the homage of the delegates to the King moved by the Canadian Premier, Mr. R. B. Bennett, and seconded by Sir Attal Chatterjee, the Indian leader, was unanimously adopted, all the delegates standing.

In welcoming the delegates on behalf of Canada, the Governor General said the conference might well be the most momentous gathering ever held within the British Empire.

MR. BENNETT'S OFFER.

After he had been appointed Chairman of Conference, Mr. R. B. Bennett announced that Canada proposed to grant to the United Kingdom an extension of the free list, to retain existing preferences in favour of Britain, and to increase preferences in respect of a selected list of articles which Britain was specially equipped to supply to Canadian markets without injuring the efficiency of Canadian enterprise.

In exchange, Canada asked for the retention of existing preferences and their effective extension to other natural and processed products of which the United Kingdom is an importer. This offer, said Mr. Bennett, would be applied in principle to other Dominions.

EMPIRE LEADERSHIP.

Mr. Bennett said that the Conference would co-operate in determining a plan along such lines, whereby the Empire might continue in leadership among the nations of the world.

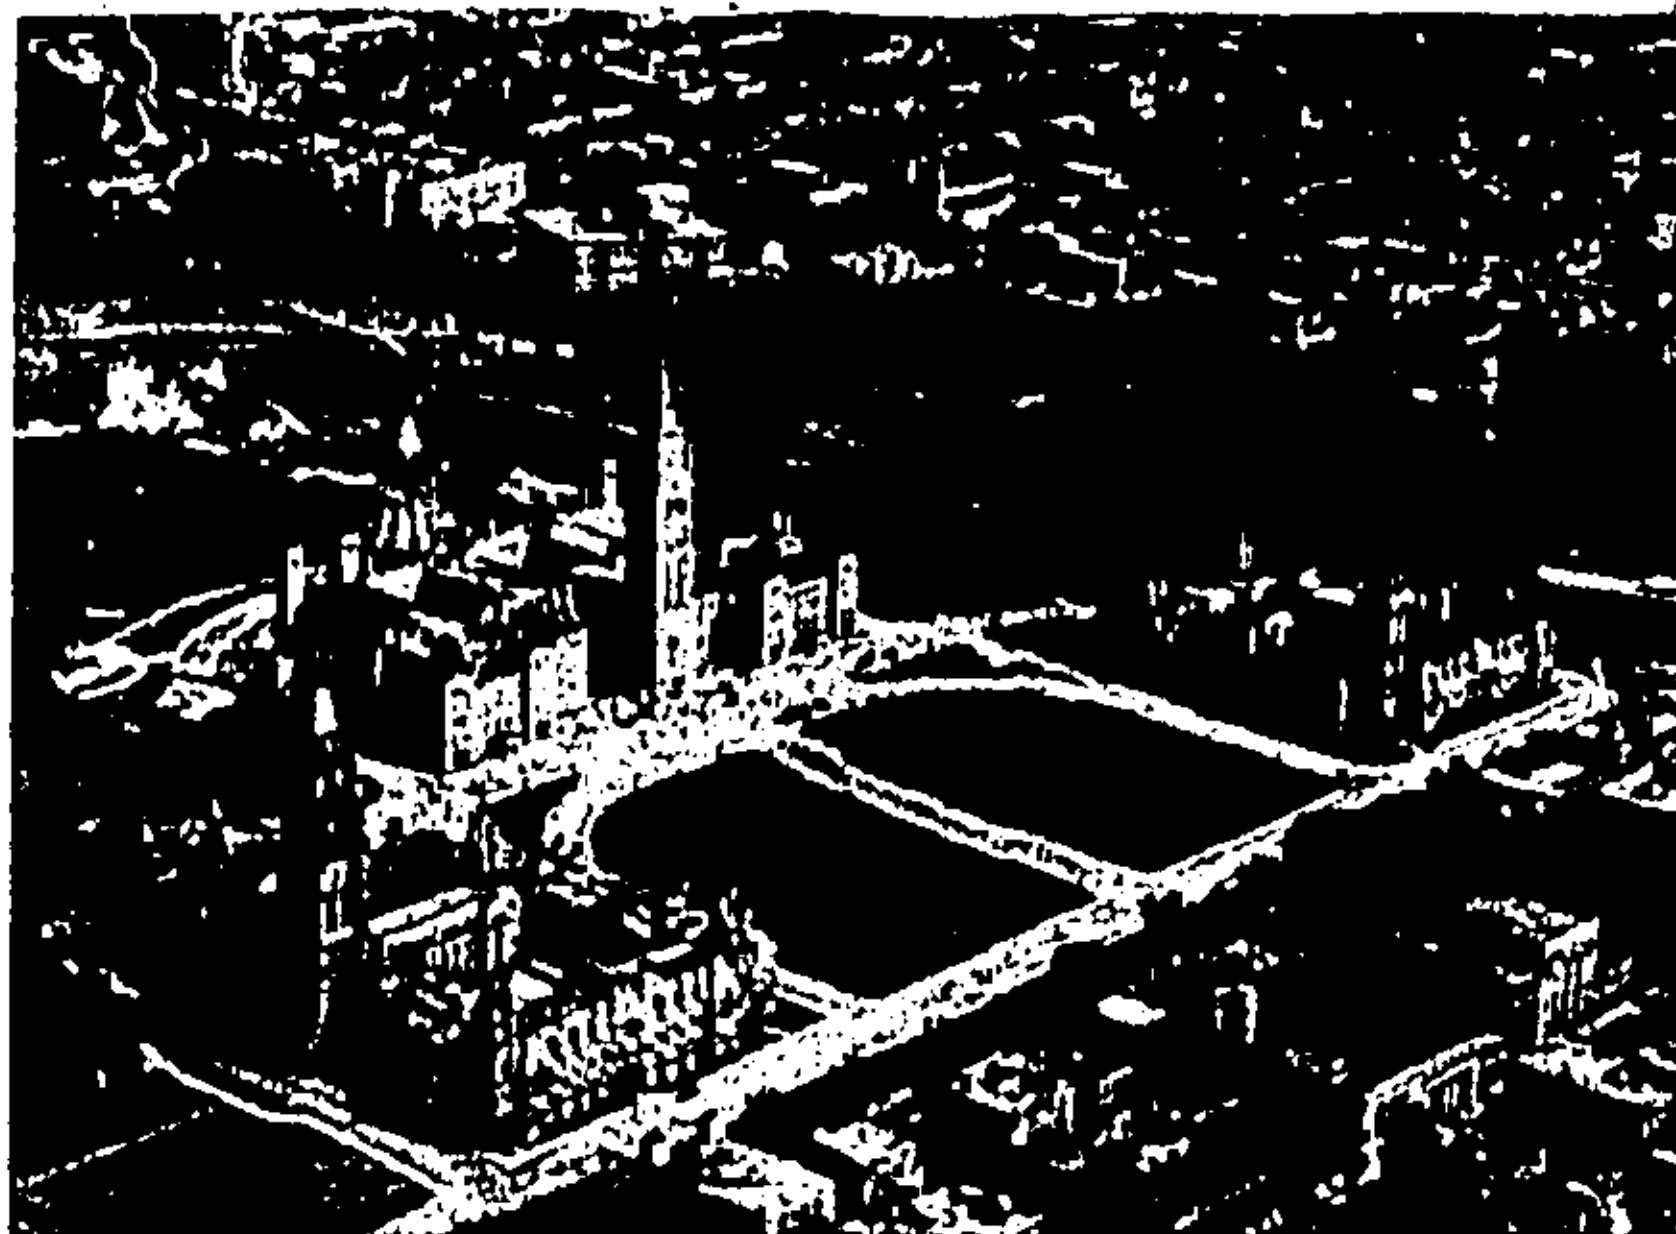

Canadian industries which had reached maturity under protective tariffs must support the Canadian Government's proposals because of the great advantages which could be secured for exporters of natural products.

Mr. Bennett said that the proposals were offered to all other parts of the Empire wherever their application would prove mutually advantageous.

MR. BALDWIN'S PLEDGE.

The chief British delegate, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, pledged Britain to co-operate in developing Mr. Bennett's proposals. He said that of the trade carried on by the Empire 70 per cent. was still with foreign countries and only 30 per cent. among themselves. The possibilities of expansion to-day were enormous, but looking to the future generations, as population increased, the scope could hardly be measured.

IRON HAND IN BERLIN

DRASTIC ORDER TO POLICE

(Reuter's Special Service).

Berlin, July 21.

Under stern military rule, with General Rundstedt in command of the Reichswehr forces entrusted with the task of maintaining order, the city was perfectly quiet to-day.

The excitement is subsiding and the Dictatorship Government is apparently satisfied that it has secured complete control of the situation.

Herr von Papen is methodically pursuing a policy of replacing the Socialistic officials with those of "Nationalist" inclinations and is drastically suppressing all signs of Communist activity.

SHOOTING INSTRUCTION.

General Rundstedt has instructed the police to use their rifles promptly and energetically if necessary and the deposed Ministers of the Prussian Government have bowed to their fate under protest.

General Rundstedt has also issued orders prohibiting anyone from inciting participation in a general strike.

VON PAPEN CARTOON.

The newspaper Achtuhrblatt has been suspended for four days for publishing a caricature of Herr von Papen drinking wine and issuing emergency orders.

Reuter's Paris correspondent says that the action of the German Rightists in employing the big attack in Prussia and throwing out the Socialist Ministry by force, is regarded as a new concession to Hitler and has provoked a definite note of uneasiness.

SOCCER DISPUTE SENSATION

MR. MOK HING & ARMY CLUBS

(By "Wanderer.")

Mr. Mok Hing did not, of course, make the amazing statements attributed to him in a contemporary yesterday in connexion with the friction between the Chinese clubs and the H.K.F.A.

It was suggested that Mr. Mok declared the Chinese intention of resigning from the Association if they did not achieve their objective and that they were assured of the support of the Army clubs, who would break away from the H.K.F.A. and form a league of their own with the Chinese clubs.

This morning, Mr. Mok Hing stated emphatically that he gave no interview to any newspaper yesterday.

IMPOSSIBLE.

It was impossible for him to have made such statements for two reasons: (1) the views were not his, (2) he had no authority to suggest what course of action the Army were likely to take.

He was quite satisfied with the statement made by Captain Heywood in Council on Wednesday to the effect that the Army reserved the right to take any course of action.

The Chinese clubs were fighting for a principle, which affected all clubs, Chinese civilian and military. Whatever the immediate results, they had no intention of resigning from the H.K.F.A.

TO FIGHT ISSUE.

They proposed to remain within the Association in order to fight out the issue. He did not expect support from any club or clubs unless they considered that the attitude of the Chinese clubs was the correct one.

It was not a question of amending rules, as Mr. R. K. Duncan seemed to think. South China does not consider that the rule needs changing. They consider that the rule should be strictly adhered to and it is their contention that under the rule in question the retiring Councilors, unless they are also club delegates, have no right to record a vote on the elections to Council.

A SIDE-KICK FROM THE TYPHOON

GALE RAGES THROUGH THE NIGHT

EMPRESS'S SHAVE

THE GALE WHICH RAGED over the Colony last night was a mere side-kick of the typhoon, which passed well to the South and is now threatening Hoikow with a very severe "blow."

In the afternoon, it seemed that the heavy winds were dying away, but shortly after eight o'clock, the gusts began to strengthen and for several hours afterwards the gale raged, varying in violence from hour to hour.

Several fierce squalls were experienced, a wind of 67 miles an hour velocity being registered at the Royal Observatory. The barometer remained fairly steady during the whole period of the storm, which was accompanied by heavy rains, and did not begin to rise until about three o'clock this morning.

SIXTY-SEVEN M.P.H. SQUALL

All further danger was considered to be past in the forenoon to-day and the warning signals were taken down.

No serious damage is reported on land. A junk capsized near Lamma with a loss of two lives and the Empress of Canada narrowly avoided a collision with a Japanese boat at the Kowloon wharves at seven o'clock this morning. She gave up the effort to go alongside and berthed in the stream until eleven.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

In the course of a statement this morning, Mr. C. W. Jeffries, Director of the Royal Observatory, stated that the gale lasted for quite 24 hours from 8.30 a.m. yesterday. The wind direction during that period varied from E. N. E. to E. S. E., with an average velocity of 27 m. p. h.

The highest squalls recorded were 66 at 10.35 a.m., 67 at 9.15 p.m., 59 at 11.35 p.m. and 63 at 11.55 p.m.

The rainfall for the 24 hours ended at 10.30 a.m. to-day was 3.31 inches.

Observations were received from several of H. M. ships and from the steamers Hirundo, Kaying, Chekiang, Felix Rousseau, Kiangsu, Empress of Canada and Patroclus. The last-named vessel kept up hourly observations from 5 p.m. yesterday. The Observatory is also indebted to Pratias Station, Gap Rock and Vaglan Lighthouses for the excellent series of hourly observations supplied throughout the gale.

INTENSITY INCREASED.

The typhoon slackened its progress after passing the meridian of Hongkong and increased in intensity considerably. This explains the small shift in wind direction and its constant velocity. This morning, the typhoon was situated near Hoikow, probably moving westwards.

EMPRESS EXPERIENCE.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, which arrived early this morning, experienced extremely rough weather accompanied by heavy rain and mist, last night.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in attempting to berth the vessel at the Kowloon wharf at 7 a.m. and two abortive attempts were made to come alongside.

At one stage it appeared almost certain that the strong current and wind would carry the Empress liner over on top of the O.S.K. liner Sumatra Maru, which was berthed at the next wharf, but skilful navigation averted the collision. The Canadian Pacific liner eventually backed out into the stream, where her anchor was dropped. She eventually berthed at 11 a.m.

KOWLOON CITY COLLAPSE

OCCUPIERS ABSENT AT TIME

A serious collapse occurred at No. 107 Main Street, Kowloon City, at about 9.30 a.m. to-day. The mishap, which was due to the heavy rains, was not attended by casualties.

One of a block of very old one-storied houses, No. 107 Main Street was occupied by working people who appear to have left for their labours as usual early this morning. At 9.30 a.m. the neighbours were startled by its collapse, but the alarm died down when it was known that no one was on the premises.

The Police on arrival, made sure that nobody was buried in the debris. They are still on the spot, doing everything possible to ensure the safety of the adjoining houses. It is feared that if the rain continues, further collapses may occur. All the houses in the vicinity are very old.

The Bidding

South opened the bidding with one heart. West over-called with two clubs. North passed and East bid three diamonds, which is one more than necessary. This is a forcing bid and requires the bidding to be kept open until game is arrived at. South passes and West bids four clubs, which East carries to five.

The Play

North had the opening lead and led the ten of hearts, the top of his partner's suit, which East, the dummy, won with the ace. South putting on the seven-spot. The nine of hearts is returned from dummy. Smith playing the jack.
Declarer the four and North the six. South has a bad hand to lead away from, a deuces to lead trump. He leads the six of trump, which the declarer allows to ride to dummy's jack.

It is easy for West to read South's hand. In order to have an original bid he is practically marked with the four kings and the queen of hearts. Declarer's next play is the ace of diamonds from dummy and then the queen. When South refuses to cover and plays the nine, the declarer discards the five of spades. A small diamond is then led from dummy. South plays the king and declarer trumps with the five of clubs and then leads the eight of hearts. North's best defence is to discard the ten of diamonds. The dummy trumps with the deuce of clubs. The declarer must not return the diamond or he will establish a trump trick for North. The proper lead is the queen of clubs from dummy. South plays the king and declarer wins the trick with the ace. Declarer then leads his ten of clubs, picking up the nine from the North hand, the eight of diamonds is discarded from dummy and South discards the four of spades.

West has a good reading on the South hand: king-queen of hearts and the king and one other spade.
Declarer therefore swings his last trump, the eight of clubs, North drops the deuce of spades, the three of spades is played from dummy and South is forced to play the queen of hearts.

The declarer now makes his position or end play by leading the five

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to Ernest Heath, her former employer. She is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son whom she met at business school. Heath sends Susan's aunt south to recuperate from an illness and the girl is grateful to him. Her Lamman, Susan's rejected suitor, shoots himself after wounding Heath. He recovers and goes away. Bob tries unsuccessfully to see Susan but she does not know that. He sees her at the theatre one night with Heath and becomes angry. Denise Ackroyd, debutante, wants Bob for herself. Susan meets Bob at a masked ball and he makes love to her. Denise interrupts.

CHAPTER XLII

The two men faced each other across the shining expanse of mahogany. Heath was seated, his fingers playing nervously with the ivory handled paper knife. Waring strolled up and down, hands in pockets.

"But tell me what happened!" Heath demanded impatiently. "If what you believe is true they should have come to some understanding that night. I've heard nothing. Everything has gone as before."

Waring shrugged. "I've told you all I know," he explained. "Maybe I've been all kinds of a fool to mix into this at all. But you asked me and I only told you what I knew."

"I'm grateful to you," said the older man stiffly. "I know I can trust you. That's why it seemed a good idea to have you take her to that party. But if they met and if nothing happened why then—!" He raised his brows inquiringly.

"I see the point. You want to go ahead. Well, I don't know but what you're right," Waring said slowly. "They danced with each other. That I'm sure of. And they had a brief tete-a-tete. I must admit I felt like a blooming spy."

"Sorry, old man, but it couldn't be helped. It was in a good cause,"

his employer reminded him. "That's that. She's had a chance to talk with him and see him again and decide that their little flurry is over. That was what I wanted to be sure of. Well, now I'm satisfied."

"Good." But Waring's tone was dubious and Heath glanced at him irritably.

"Out with it man. If you've something to say, say it and be done with it."

Waring stared reflectively out across the roof tops. "It's nothing except that she seemed a bit excited as we drove home," he said lamely.

Heath laughed aloud, relieved. "Is that all? Well, I can see nothing in that. Any girl might be excited coming home from a big party. No, no, you're getting to be an old woman." He clapped the other affectionately on the shoulder. "I appreciate your solicitude, old chap, but honestly, I think it was pretty much wasted. Your imagination was working overtime."

"I hope you're right," Waring muttered.

"I know I am," said Heath heartily. And on that note the conversation ended.

"Why do we wait any longer?" Heath asked Susan that night over a table high in a city restaurant. The city lay far flung beneath them, a spangle of lights to north and south.

His complacency was momentarily disturbed by the look she flashed at him. There was something unsettling about that look.

"She behaves as though she were afraid of me," the man thought in surprise. He was very gentle.

"Your aunt's coming back on Saturday, isn't she?" he went on.

The suit was delivered the following afternoon and with it came pumps of snakeskin and stockings of sheerest silk. Rose had even chosen a tiny turban to complete the ensemble. It was fashioned of myriad small velvet flowers in pale fawn shades.

"Try them on, lovey," Mrs. Milton commanded. Susan obeyed. Listless as she was she could not help a feeling of satisfaction at the effect produced by the new outfit. She looked to herself, slim, straight and remotely elegant as the mannequins sketched on the pages of Vogue.

"You surely are a picture," Mrs. Milton told her, wiping away a sentimental tear. "When I was a girl we thought we weren't married right unless we wore white satin and a long veil, but I declare, no one could mistake you for anything but a bride this minute. Listen, dear, there's the doorbell," she went on rapidly. "My hair's a sight so you go. There's a good child."

Susan flung open the door, prepared to speed some luckless vendor of books on his way. Could she be dreaming? There before her stood Bob Dunbar.

"May I come in for a moment?" he asked coolly. "But I see you were going out. Perhaps I can walk along with you."

"I wasn't going out," answered Susan, confused. "I just tried these things on." She bit her lip, annoyed at having made this naive admission.

"All the better then because I want to talk to you for a bit," the young man repeated.

Susan led him into the comfortable Milton living room. She put up a hand to remove the little hat but Bob stopped her.

"Please don't take it off," he begged. "It suits you. Do you know you look marvelous in that turnout?"

"Thank you," said Susan gravely. She was feasting her eyes on the precious outline of his lean face, crested with unruly fair hair.

"Sit down, won't you?" "I do much better standing," said Bob. "I've had the deuce of a time finding you. Why did you stage an escape scene that night of the ball? You didn't even leave a Cinderella slipper."

"There was nothing else to do," said Susan gravely.

"There was nothing else to do," said Susan gravely.

Susan twisted her hands and tried to avoid his eyes. "You mustn't talk that way," she said rapidly. "I can't let you. It's not right."

His laugh rang out. "Who says it isn't right?" "I do."

"Look here, my girl!" With a single long stride he was at her side. He dropped to one knee, bringing his face on a level with Susan's. "We've got to cut out this nonsense. We're wasting time. I thought we settled all this that night."

"Nothing was settled," Susan said, trembling at his nearness. She could catch the scent of expensive tobacco and shaving soap and Russian leather. His blue eyes, dancing wickedly, were dangerously close to hers.

"I thought you were bright," he mocked her. "I thought you knew what I was talking about." His voice lowered, softened. Into it crept the lover's note that Susan had heard once before.

"My girl," he muttered, covering her clasped hands with one of his own. "My own darling."

Susan's heart melted to him utterly but she sat, rigid and apparently composed.

"Sweetheart, look at me!" Bob commanded.

Unwillingly she turned her eyes to his. "You mustn't," she warned him. "I've no right to listen. You've forgotten—"

"Forgotten what?" The flush ran over her pale skin clear down to the point where the creamy throat was swallowed up in the aureole of pale fur.

"This—" Susan indicated her outfit. "This is the costume I've chosen for my wedding."

"Your wedding! I won't have it," Dunbar sterned. "You belong to me and to nobody else." (To Be Continued).

CHARLES Ruggles, one of the real humourists of the Hollywood studios in a typical pose as he appears in Husband's Holiday, the King's mid-week offering next week.

THAT "the old order changeth," and changeth very rapidly, is not more true than when applied to the talking picture world. Those silents of a decade or more ago that thrilled with their grossly exaggerated histrionics, their heroines registering emotion and glycerine tears with the sob stop pulled right out, and their slapstick comedy produced on the "When in doubt, throw a pie" system, moved their audiences not one whit less than the present day highly efficient films; yet today those old-timers bring only jeers and ironic cheers. "Screen Souvenirs," which Paramount are now resurrecting from the scrap heaps of past celluloid triumphs, are proof enough.

AN EVOLUTION.

IT is an evolution that was bound to come, especially in an industry only just out of its swaddling clothes, and it is hardly worth noting that the film to-day is a vastly different work to those old barnstormers when William S. Hart provided the thrills and Francis X. Bushman was the matinee idol. The interest lies in what the years have taught the film makers, what they have eschewed and added, and the various tricks of camera and direction that make the film to-day so interesting for the cinema enthusiast who subordinates story and acting to photography and treatment when visiting a cinema theatre. It seems a reasonable assumption that the supply is controlled by the demand, in quality as well as quantity, and if that be so, it follows that the changes in film direction have come side-by-side with the changes in film sense of the great body for whom films are made.

SCENE from The Sin Of Madelon Claudet, featuring Helen Hayes and Neil Hamilton which will be unfolded to Queen's Theatre audiences on Sunday.

Evolution of Cinema from Mere Money-making Industry to Standard of Art Now Inevitable

CORRESPONDENT'S INTERESTING

NOTES AND COMMENTS BY "CELLULOID"

BREVITY is the soul of the well-produced film of to-day, and sobstuff and tears, no matter how much it may permeate the story, is not on the scenario. And the brevity of the modern film and the various dodges that film makers employ to obtain it, is more than anything else, where the present productions differ mostly from those of the pre-war period. That development alone would be a strong point for the mover of a debate that the public of to-day is more intelligent when viewing a film.

The craze for speed has undoubtedly influenced our tastes in the cinema, and the efficient mind, brought up in an atmosphere of high speed business and efficiency experts, is not impressed with the film that wastes hundreds of feet of film in superlatives. An audience to-day appreciates a director who leaves a little to their imagination: a man like von Sternberg who employs a jumbled superimposition of scenes to convey the passage of time, or a Manoullian lavishing symbols to heighten the effect of his best shots. A director who indulges in wordy dialogue to convey an unimportant point or wastes hundreds of feet in portraying an every day act, insults the public's intelligence—and the public knows it.

AN ILLUSTRATION.

IN searching for illustrations, "Emin" springs most readily to mind. It is a magnificent slice of modern film fare that is thick with sugary sentiment and just the type of plot that pre-war directors would have grasped. Yet how different was Clarence Brown's treatment. There have been few recent films that demonstrate more the strides Hollywood has made. In it are three deaths and it is chivalrous of modern film fare that in the good old days would have disposed of half the film. But audiences to-day will not swallow close-ups of heroines registering emotion like they did 10 years ago, and the death-bed scenes, which once would have been the features, are dismissed with a few feet: just a few words or a simple shot to suggest them, yet there was never doubt.

NOW THEN ENGLAND!

THE foregoing is the able contribution of a correspondent, whose interest in films has obviously led him to study them more deeply and analytically than the majority of cinema-goers. The evolution of the cinema, though perhaps disappointingly slow to numbers of its enthusiastic followers (the chief reason for which can be found in that retarding influence "box-office receipts"), cannot be denied or ignored. As to whom are contributing to that progressive evolution from a money-making industry to an art is, perhaps, beside the point. Nevertheless, in their business-like and dollars-complex way American has done something.

France too, through its Rene Clair, has given a taste of better things to come within the cinema, and Russia, if reports are to be accepted, has refined the very basis of the new and creative cinema. England's opportunity to do her share has not been lost: in fact she has a greater chance now and in the immediate future than ever before. But her studios and the industry as a whole must be re-organised and to a large extent centralised. Here is where a national institute can prove of the finest boon.

ANOTHER FAILURE.

BRITISH films have received such a cold reception from the critics in Hongkong that one feels annoyed to have to once again affix the label "failure" to a Twickenham production. Yet personally, I find it quite impossible to view At the Villa Rose in any other light. Heretofore,

VIVACIOUS Jeanette MacDonald and the irrepressible Maurice Chevalier in their latest success One Hour With You, which will be shown at the King's Theatre on Sunday week.

English films have been credited with the extenuating fact that the industry, not being so highly organised or technically equipped as the American studios, their productions must of necessity suffer in comparison. But the argument scarcely holds good with At the Villa Rose, in so far that it is a comparatively recent picture, and at least, produced at a time when the English studios were reported to be making big advances in technical efficiency.

MERELY STAGES SCENES.

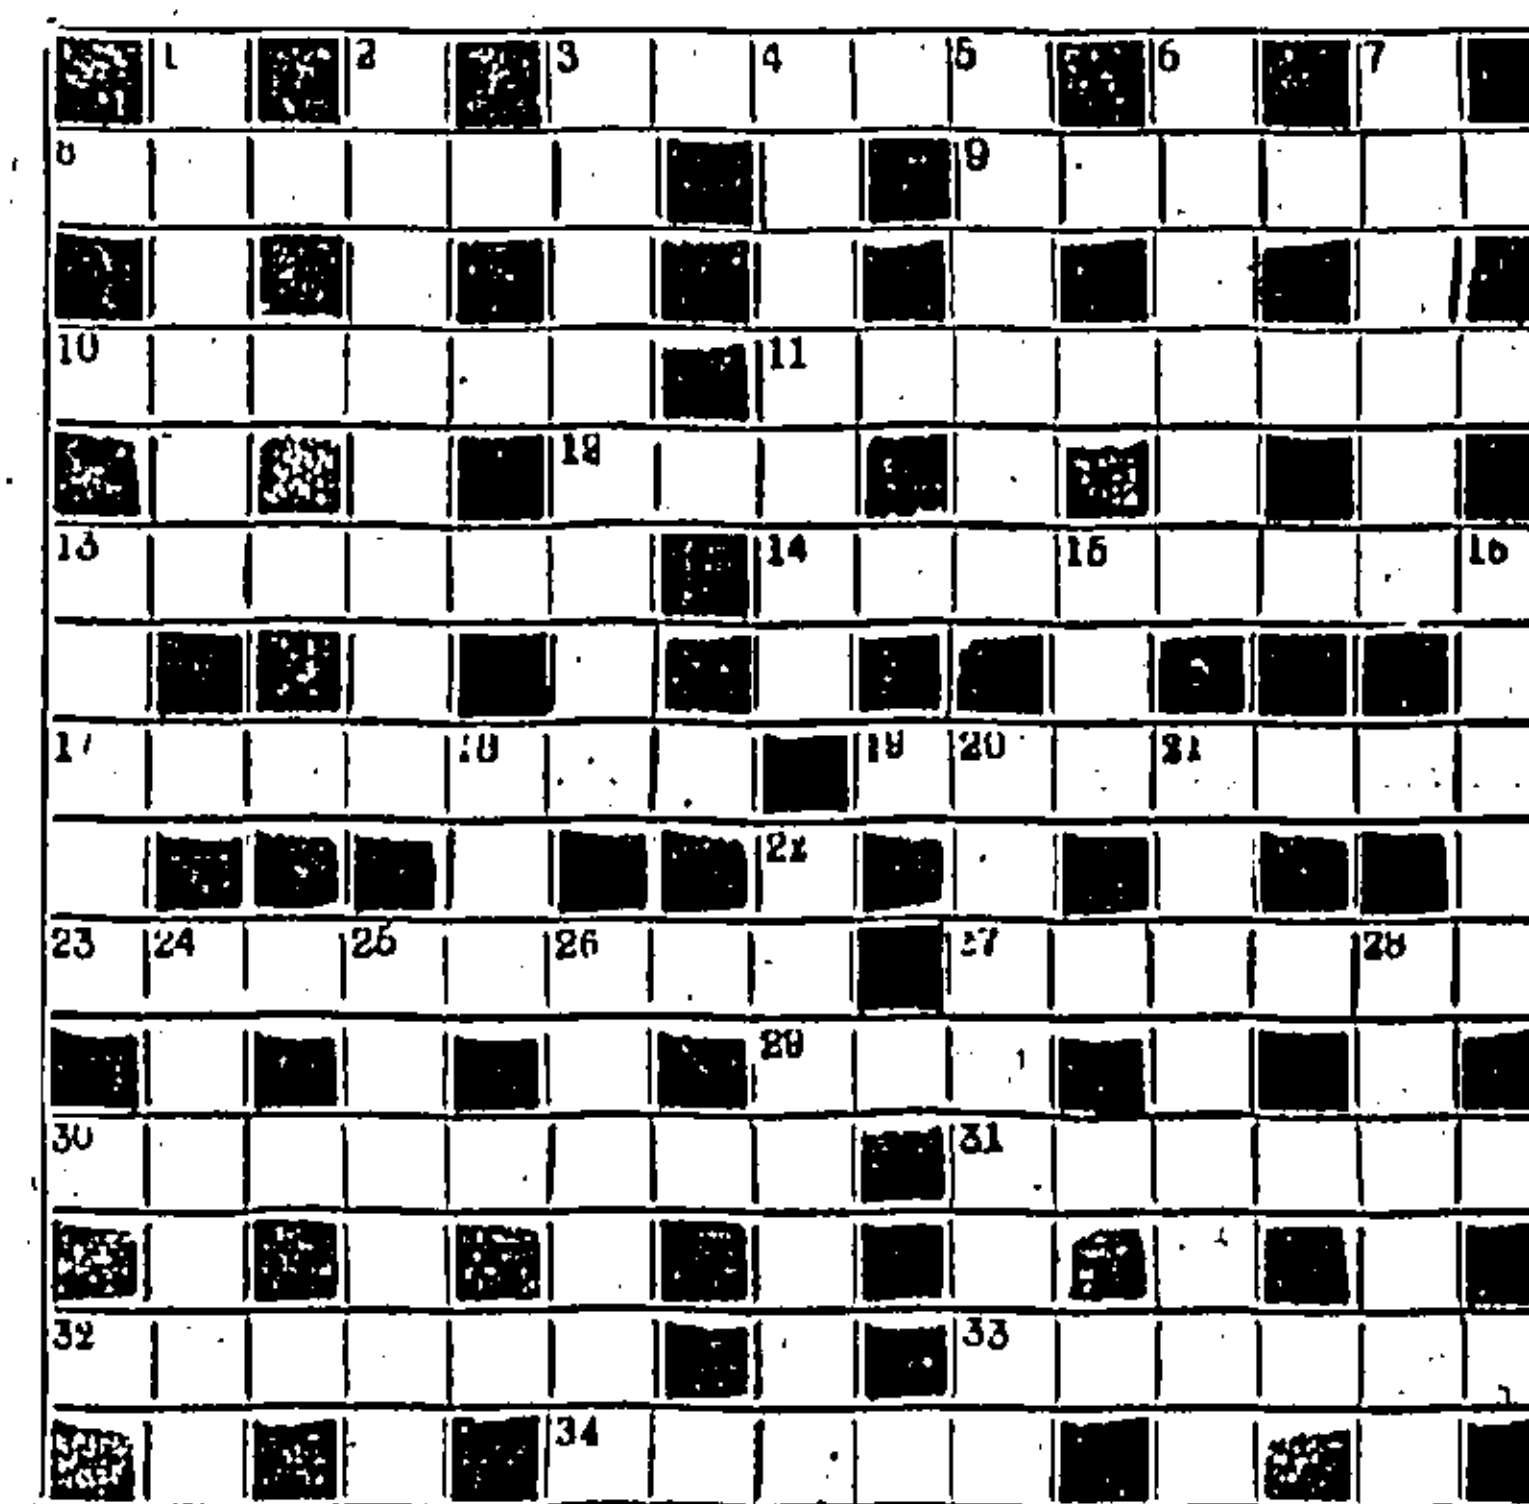

Yet what is the result? Merely another stage play transferred in its entirety and without embellishment to the screen. The enormous disadvantages accruing from this are easily distinguished. Camera work is stilted and I felt positively sorry for Blythe, the cameraman, who was obviously endeavouring to overcome the manifold inconveniences of stage scenes, and had to resort to shots through little work to introduce colour to his photographs and found opportunity for but one angle shot and a really first rate close-up of Austin Trevor.

PERSONALITIES WANTED.

ONCE again the fact was forcibly brought home that the English screen is suffering from a dearth of real actresses. For the most part they are insipid, lack personality and are ill-chosen for their roles. Norah Baring was absolutely painful, her monotonous voice being only a little worse than her futile efforts to act a dramatic part. The director wasted hundreds of feet of valuable celluloid in registering inconsequential scenes and dialogue such as the arrival at the Villa of the woman with the bag and I sighed for the hand of a John Cromwell, Ernst Lubitsch or even Victor Saville in the many situations which implied delicate but strong treatment. My disappointment was not so much that the film failed to entertain me, but that it indicated how little has been the progress of Elstree in her competition with the imaginative and efficient Hollywood studios.

RESULTS NEEDED

By degrees, tangible results look like being evolved from the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, even if they may not represent everything that could be desired. Progress is indicated in the latest announcement, and that is surely something to the good. This gathering, together with the recent Lausanne parleys and the Ottawa Conference just opened, has attracted considerable notice. It is realised that despite the geographical separation of these three Conference centres, they are all concerned with inseparable aspects of one problem—to lift the world out of its present economic distress and help to restore international trade and prosperity.

Signor Mussolini, in a recent comment on these inter-governmental activities, stated that "Conferences of this kind are good and desirable institutions if they achieve results; otherwise they only fill the people of the world with a false hope, followed by even more intense disappointment and despair." He himself gave up attending these international gatherings because he found "there was so much ceremonial perplexity and vacillation." The interminable chain of Conferences on Reparations and War Debts which produced one definitive settlement after another must have convinced the statesmen of the world that further procrastination and evasion of the hard realities of bitter experience will only aggravate the deep-seated maladies which afflict the peoples. The delays, looked at one time likely to plunge the World Disarmament Conference into the danger of failure, and actual failure would destroy for a long period the chance of effectively controlling and minimising the danger and burden of huge competitive national armaments. The world muddle of to-day is the result of world madness in the past and it will continue so long as the nations are unable to co-operate on policies which they individually know to be the indispensable remedies. Even while Conferences are being arranged and held, the situation is becoming increasingly worse. To give a single illustration, world unemployment is far worse to-day than it was a year ago. It is estimated that there are now 11,000,000 unemployed in the United States, 7,000,000 in Germany, and 1,000,000 in Italy. Britain's unemployed total is 2,740,000. It is probably safe to say that in Europe and the United States alone, there are something like 25,000,000 persons out of work. And unless international decisions, which have been put off too long already, are taken in the near future, it is almost certain that the coming winter will bring with it another huge increase in unemployment, and still more impoverishment to the peoples generally.

The point of these observations is that the recent Lausanne discussions and the developments which are now occurring at Geneva must produce definite accomplishments if the world is to be helped out of the economic morass into which it has fallen. There is a call for the cancellation of war debts and reparations, a definite curtailment of expenditure on armaments, and a serious effort in the direction of cutting down trade barriers. These are the irreducible minima of international action necessary to secure the much-needed revival of trade. If really worthwhile results are not attained by these conferences, people will be justified in despairing of their statesmen and of their own future.

Europe's New Powder Magazine.

Has a new powder magazine arisen in Europe to usurp the unenviable reputation enjoyed before 1914 by the Balkans? Some observers of recent events point to more than one place where explosive material is being stored. Lord Buxton, in the House of Lords, recently declared that Poland and Yugoslavia are dangers to the peace of Europe. Both countries have large minority populations, people of different race, language and religion from those of the majority. The victimisation and oppression of these people, often carried out systematically, is sowing the seeds of future wars. Altogether in Europe, there are probably between thirty and fifty million grouped in minorities. When Germans or Ukrainians under Polish sovereignty are persistently persecuted, bonds of friendship between Germany and Poland are hardly strengthened. Similarly, with the Bulgarians and Albanians in Yugoslavia, the quarrels of individuals tend to become the quarrels of nations. The grievances of the minorities must not be under-estimated because they appear to be brought about by a series of pinpricks. Minor measures of discrimination are magnified by national passions. The closing of a German school in Upper Silesia by the Polish authorities becomes almost a casus belli. The denial of political rights to a few hundreds or thousands of individuals is looked upon as a deadly insult to their fellows on the other side of the border. We still hardly appreciate the full extent to which pre-war minority problems contributed to the upheaval of 1914. It is true that the League of Nations is supposed to safeguard the interests of the chief minority populations of Europe. This, however, is a field in which the League can hardly claim to have been conspicuously successful. To start with, this unenviable job was flung upon Geneva almost as an afterthought in order to relieve the Powers of individual responsibility in the matter, and none of the statesmen at the Peace Conference thought of giving the League the necessary machinery. Again, when minorities questions have been raised in League Council, there has been temptation for foreign ministers to take the line of least resistance. Two out of every three petitions received have been turned down. Lord Buxton's suggestion, supported by Lord Cecil, is that the League of Nations should appoint a committee of experts. On behalf of the British Government, Lord Hailsham replied that the matter would be given careful consideration. It is important that something should be done. The mere fact that the minorities have a nominal court of appeal in the League of Nations acts at present as a safety valve. But, if that safety valve is continually blocked up, sooner or later an explosion is bound to occur.

THE UPRISING OF
THE YOUNG

By "SENTINEL"

THE hard-hitting articles by Cecil Rhodes to wake up Earl Grey—with whom he was staying at Government House in Bulawayo—at about 2 a.m., to ask him this question: "Do you ever think how lucky you were to be born an Englishman? You might have been a Mashona!"

But if I were a German in Germany to-day, I should certainly be wearing a brown shirt and shouting "Hail Hitler!" and living up to Machiavelli's downright advice, "All armed prophets have conquered, and all the unarmed ones have been destroyed." There can be no doubt that the whole power of patriotic German youth is enlisted under the curious standards of Hitlerism with their swastika signs and that the Nazis will presently be in control of Prussia, which means control of the Reich. That is one of the inconvenient certainties which we like to overlook as long as possible.

The growth of Hitlerism in Germany is an almost exact parallel to the growth of Fascism in Italy, whether measured by election statistics or in any other way. And a more remote historic parallel to this German "Youth Movement," which has now become established as a Party with a militia to support it, is found in the secret organisations of young patriots which came into being after the dreadful humiliation of Jena and prepared the way for the armed revival of Prussia as a Great Power under the leadership of Father Blucher. [The late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in one of his captivating stories of Brigadier Gerard gives an impressive picture of the German land silently making ready for revolt, almost in the spirit of Gambetta's saying in the dreary days when Revanche seemed to many a century distant: "Think of it ever, speak of it never."]

The maxim: Youth will be served, might also be illustrated from the intimate history of post-war Poland and the Dictatorship of Marshal Pilsudski, once a Socialist and a revolutionary whose autobiography is as fascinating a document as Mussolini's, though less full of "sacred egotism" and picturesque similes. There is also the case of Young Japan. But America, where the Continental idea of a faction with firearms is not as unfamiliar as it is in England, might conceivably improve on the Ku Klux Klan experiment on Fundamentalism with a blackjack. The American people have been deeply humiliated by the Lindbergh outrage and, in the economic sphere, by the impossibility of taxing beer as we do, because the whole profits of collecting and distributing that illegal refreshment is monopolised by the ubiquitous city gangs.

"The boys saw in me," wrote the Duke, "the avenger of our wronged Italy. The dying said: 'Give us our black shirts for winding sheets.' I could not remain unmoved when I knew that their last thoughts were of 'Our native land and the Duke.' Love and songs bloomed. A revival of youth filled with Italian boldness swamped with its virile male beauty the unrestrained rages of irresponsibility; painted out the fear of the Socialists; obliterated the ambiguity of the Liberals." When the Black Shirts marched on Rome, to set up a Government based on realities—in which, to take one point, both employer and employed should have, even-handed justice—a friend of mine was amazed at the youthfulness of the "Bundles of Light" (Fasci di Combattimento).

If I had been an Italian in Italy when Bolshevism first appeared as a negotium perambulans in tenebris I should certainly have put on a black shirt at Mussolini's trumpet-call. And if I were a German? The idea is rather a severe tax on the imagination, especially for one who can sympathise with the racial pride which on one occasion caused

So we find several American journals of national consequence sending out an S O S appeal to the younger generation to start a campaign against political corruption, organised crime, and vote-buying legislation. Thus the best-known of American weeklies, which has a circulation of close on 3,000,000 and accordingly reflects the mentality of the average decent citizen, describes the present Congress as "a pack of frightened white rabbits with bewildered pink eyes," pursuing a policy of panic and compromise. All electors, who think that their views are not being honestly represented at Washington and in the lesser legislative capitals, are advised to address letters of protest to the men they sent there, which will feel like the impact of Micky Walker's left hook.

But this representative organ of nonpartisan opinion has small hope for better things from the older generation of voters. "They have stood," it goes on to say, "for organised crime, organised graft, and organised tax confiscation; some because they were too lazy to lift a hand against the system, others because they fancied they were gaining some personal advantage from it. With honourable exceptions they have been unwilling to touch our 'dirty politics,' and that is just what makes them dirty. But there are thousands of fine, intelligent young men and women, stranded by the depression and uncertain about their future, who can help clean up our 'dirty politics' if they will." I sincerely hope America will find a young Hercules to cleanse the Augean stables of Transatlantic governance. And I am hopeful that she will—for as Owen Wister pointed out at the time, it was the will-power of the young Americans which compelled the timid, time-serving professional politicians to

defeating Leicester by nine
wickets in two days in the second match of the Maidstone
festival.

Alan Watt, the Kent League
goalkeeper, and Club, and Ground
player, enjoyed a small triumph
with the ball for the "Hop" county,
capturing five of Leicester's second
innings wickets for 24 runs.

Armstrong stood out as the prominent performer for the losers,
scoring a fine century in Leicester's
first knock which realised 226.

Armstrong's contribution was 115.
Kent failed by five runs to reach
the 300 mark in their reply, but it was sufficient, Leicester collapsing
so disastrously in the second attempt as to be dismissed for 83,
leaving the home team to score 16
to win.

BROWN AND GODDARD

Surrey took only two days to defeat Gloucester by 49 runs in a match featured by some extraordinary fine bowling on the part of Goddard and Brown. The former captured 11 for 109 (6 for 39 in

the first innings when Surrey
scored 156, and 5 for 70 in the return visit, when the Londoners'
total was 202).

F. R. Brown, the Surrey bowler
was even more successful taking
a dozen wickets during the match
for 87 runs. His initial analysis
was 6 for 31, when Gloucester aggregated 114, and he helped to put Hammond and his men out at a second time for 195 by capturing 6 wickets for 56 runs.—Reuter.

REVIEWED*VERITY A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

(BY "HISTORICUS")

HEDLEY VERITY'S wonderful feat in taking 10
wickets for 10 runs in the Yorkshire v. Notts match at Leeds just concluded, which was given such prominence in the columns of the Hongkong Telegraph
has prompted me to look up the various outstanding performances of some of his Yorkshire predecessors.

the Rev. R. S. Holmes remarks:—"The fact is Yorkshire's supply of bowlers has always been inexhaustible"; and Yorkshire records serve to show the truth of this statement.

The Yorkshire County Cricket Club
was formed in 1803, but Yorkshire
possessed notable cricketers long before that date.

One of the most famous bowlers
they ever had was George Freeman
(a real "speed merchant") who played
for Yorkshire (with various interludes when he could not appear owing
to business engagements, from 1805
to 1881, during which period he took 148 wickets for an average of 10.03
per wicket. Two of his finest performances took place in 1807 and 1868,
in which years in playing against Lancashire, he captured 7 of their
wickets for 10 runs and 8 for 11
respectively. In the 1868 match Tom Emmett and he bowled unchanged
throughout the game, and between them, hit the stumps no less than 18
times, the Lancashire totals being 30
and 34!

Regarding his merits as a bowler,
the Rev. R. S. Holmes, in his work
above referred to, says that it is sufficient to quote the combined
testimony of Dr. W. G. Grace and Richard Duff that he was the finest fast bowler they had ever played against.

EMMETT'S FEATS.

Tom Emmett, who was Freeman's
bowling partner on various occasions,
and who played for Yorkshire during
the period 1806 to 1888 and obtained
1,269 wickets for 12.68 runs each,
could show the following performances.

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1806	6	for 7	Surrey
1808	6	for 12	Lancashire
1809	9	for 16	Derbyshire
1810	9	for 23	Cambridge
1811	7	for 9	Sussex
1812	4	for 9	Surrey
1813	3	for 4	Derbyshire
1814	3	for 10	Derbyshire
1815	3	for 10	Australia
1816	4	for 10	Lancashire

The Rev. R. S. Holmes, in the above mentioned history, relates that when Emmett and Freeman were on together, Dr. W. G. Grace stated that he realised that 100 runs made against them was something to be proud of.

ANOTHER FAST BOWLER.

Freeman's successor as a fast
bowler, was Allen Hill, who, playing for Yorkshire against Surrey in his initial match, captured 12 wickets (all clean bowled) for 57.

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1814	9	for 9	United South (whose team included Dr. W. G. Grace and also the renowned Willshers).
1815	4	for 11	Lancashire
1816	7	for 14	Surrey
1817	6	for 8	Sussex
1818	6	for 18	M.C.C.

He played from 1871 to 1883, and in all captured 503 wickets at an average per wicket of 12.70.

His successor was G. P. Harrison
(1883 to 1891) who took 295 wickets
at an average per wicket of 14.48 and
in his first season distinguished himself against Lancashire by taking 7
wickets for 43 in the first match that year, and 6 for 22 in the second.

In his last year—1891—he captured
6 Middlesex wickets for 14.

ULYETT & WAINWRIGHT.

In the meantime, George Ulyett
(1873-1893), though more famous as a batsman, had given evidence of his capacity as a bowler in the following instances:—

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1874	6	for 1	All England
1875	8	for 7	Sussex
1876	8	for 24	Notts
1877	5	for 4	Surrey
1878	5	for 16	Lancashire—against whom the following year he accomplished the "hat-trick".
1879	7	for 36	Australia

Altogether he captured 484 wickets
for 18.18 runs a piece.

I must not forget "Billy" Bates
(1877-1887) who was a fine batsman
as well as a good bowler, taking 600
wickets for an average of 10.70. His main bowling feats were:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1878	7	for 19	Sussex
1879	6	for 11	Middlesex
1880	6	for 21	Surrey
1881	6	for 16	Derbyshire
1882	6	for 17	Notts
1883	6	for 12	Notts
1884	8	for 8	Surrey

Harrison's successor was Wainwright (1888-1902), who took 1,173
wickets at an average per wicket of 17.24, and placed the following figures
to his credit.

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1889	4	for 6	Lancashire
1890	4	for 6	Kent
1891	4	for 11	Middlesex
1892	4	for 11	Derbyshire
1893	4	for 13	Middlesex
1894	4	for 14	Sussex

Playing against Sussex at Down-bury in 1804, he brought the match
to a summary conclusion by taking
the last five wickets in seven balls,
including the performance of the "hat
trick". In the whole match he obtained 13 wickets for 38 runs.

BRILLIANT FIRST.

Wainwright was for some time a contemporary of George Hirst, who played for Yorkshire from 1889 to 1919, taking 2,569 wickets for 17.86
runs apiece.

Hirst's most remarkable bowling feats were:—

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1892	6	for 16	Sussex
1893	6	for 12	Derbyshire
1894	4	for 11	Notts
1895	5	for 6	Somerset
1896	7	for 16	Sussex
1897	4	for 7	Surrey
1898	7	for 12	Essex
1899	5	for 9	Australia
1900	4	for 10	Gloucestershire
1901	7	for 18	Leicestershire
1902	6	for 12	Northamptonshire
1903	6	for 23	Lancashire
1904	9	for 41	Worcestershire

He never succeeded in capturing all 10 wickets in an innings, but came
Lancashire, as last above shown—
Schofield Haigh taking the other wicket, and joyfully remarking when Hirst asked for the ball on the conclusion of the game, "Well George, I think I ought to have half as I took
the remaining wicket!"

His nine wickets for 41 against Worcestershire in 1911 were obtained
on a perfect wicket, and 8 of them
were "clean-bowled."

Mention must also be made of
Hon. (now Rt. Hon. Sir) F. S. Jackson (1890-1907) whose record shows 504 wickets at a cost of 19.18 per wicket. Two of his best pieces of bowling occurred in 1902, when he took 8 Lancashire wickets for 13 runs
and 6 for 12 against the Australians.

SLOW BOWLERS.

Turning to the slow bowlers, Yorkshire were fortunate in securing the services more or less one after another of Pate, Peel and Rhodes
(and now, in turn, Verity).

Of the respective merits of Pate,
Peel and Rhodes, the views of David
Hunter, the old Yorkshire wicket-keeper (who "kept" for Yorkshire
from 1888 to 1909 and had often played against Pate in local cricket),
are set out in the "History of Yorkshire County Cricket, 1903-1923" by
Mr. A. W. Pullin ("Old Ebor") who
gives them as follows:

"I always say that Pate was the finest left-arm bowler I ever saw. He had a beautiful action and was extraordinarily
accurate, seldom, if ever, losing his length.
Peel, I should place second, and Wilfred Rhodes, a great bowler though he is, as the third. But I will say this of Rhodes—in the last three years his length bowling
has been better than it ever was. He may not spin the ball so much as he used to do
but he keeps a perfect length more consistently. Hardly do you see him send down a short one on the leg side—unless
there is a trap in it!"

Pate played for Yorkshire from 1879 to 1887—taking 819 wickets for 12.56 per wicket. His best performances were:—

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1879	8	for 14	Middlesex
1880	8	for 16	Lancashire
1881	6	for 18	Gloucestershire

His feat in taking 6 wickets for 5
runs against Surrey in 1883 was a remarkable one, as was the match
itself, Yorkshire, after scoring 116,
dismissed Surrey for 31 and 82.

In the same year (1883), Pate and Harrison dismissed Kent for 65 and 79 after Yorkshire had made 276—
their bowling figures for the match
being:—
Harrison 10 wickets for 66.
Pate 9 wickets for 79.

A VICTORY RECALLED.

Almost as wonderful as Pate's above feat against Surrey was his achievement in taking six wickets for 13 against Gloucestershire in 1884.
"Old Ebor" refers to it in his Yorkshire Cricket History, and narrates it in Pate's own words. Yorkshire's first innings score of 128 had been passed by Gloucestershire with 170,
and Yorkshire in their second
innings had fared very badly at the end of the second day's play. That evening both teams were entertained
at a banquet given by a certain nobleman, and in the course of the speech making Dr. W. G. Grace was inclined to speak of Gloucestershire's
prospective victory, to which Tom Emmett had replied "No doctor; we are Yorkshiremen and we have never lost until the last run is got or wicket taken."

LESSONS OF
THE TEST*LEVESON-GOWER'S TRIBUTE TO INDIANS

Writing on the Test Match between All-India and England, H.
D. Leveson-Gower says:—

England won the Test Match at Lord's by 153 runs; but India went down fighting, and assuredly can look back on their first Test match in this country with every satisfaction. They showed knowledge, skill and activity; their popularity is undoubted. They are to be consoled with for the accidents that their players sustained. The loss of Nazir Ali's bowling on the first day meant much; then followed Palla's injury. Both of them necessarily were very much handicapped in their batting.

India have shown us that they possess in Nissar, Amar Singh, and Jehangir Khan three bowlers of decided class, and it is doubtful whether better bowling has been seen at headquarters this year than that which was witnessed on Monday afternoon. It taxed the skill of our leading batmen to such an extent that run-getting was made positively difficult.

An Admirable Captain.

Nayudu captained his side admirably, and the folding throughout was of a high standard. Yes, India may well be satisfied. They have proved themselves thoroughly entitled to the status of a Test match, and one can express the hope that when they next visit this country more than one Test match will be allotted to them.

Jardine is to be much congratulated on England's success, a success greatly due to himself.
Whether the match has helped those who have the responsibility of selecting the team for Australia is doubtful. Robins clearly demonstrated his value as an all-round cricketer, and as a spin bowler appeared more difficult than Brown; Bowes bowled well at times but was not very impressive; Voce inspired one more; Hammond did what was required of him in the bowling line; and the folding was satisfactory. The disappointment, of course, was the failure in both innings of the earlier batsmen.

Roy Kilner (1911-1927) with 858
wickets at 17.33 each could show:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1910	4	for 12	Leicestershire
1911	4	for 10	Gloucestershire
1912	4	for 12	Gloucestershire
1913	6	for 22	Essex
1914	5	for 14	Notts
1915	6	for 13	Gloucestershire
1916	8	for 25	Gloucestershire
1917	6	for 14	Middlesex
1918	4	for 18	Lancashire
1919	5	for 17	Lancashire
1920	4	for 18	Gloucestershire
1921	5	for 10	Sussex
1922	4	for 10	Gloucestershire
1923	6	for 14	Lancashire
1924	8	for 20	Middlesex
1925	5	for 21	Sussex

OTHER GIANTS.

Emmett Robinson (1919-1931), who only retired last year, (with a record of 892 wickets for an average of 21.98) has the following performances
to his credit:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1920	9	for 24	Lancashire
1921	7	for 20	Notts
1922	7	for 25	Kent
1923	8	for 32	Northamptonshire
1924	7	for 18	Derbyshire
1925	7	for 25	Gloucestershire
1926	7	for 27	Notts

The figures relative to Waddington (1919-1927) (831 wickets for 19.36 each) are:

Year	Wickets	Runs	Opponents
1920	7	for 18	Gloucestershire
1921	7	for 21	Warwickshire
1922	7	for 25	Derbyshire
1923	6	for 18	Derbyshire
1924	7	for 31	Northamptonshire
1925	7	for 6	Sussex
1926	5	for 9	Worcestershire

G. G. Macaulay, who is still playing for Yorkshire, and who up to the end of last season had 1,471 wickets at an average of 16.81 to his credit, has also accomplished many fine bowling feats.

With regard to comparative records in the case of the capture of all 10 wickets in an innings, Wisden's Cricketers' Almanac, as the Hongkong Telegraph correctly states, does not give the comparative records, but it does set out among other remarkable analyses the following:

Year	Name of Bowler	Match	Wkts.	Runs
1857/8	G. Elliot	Victoria v. Australia	9	for 2
1863	Pate	Yorkshire v. Surrey	6	for 5
1864	F. R. Spofforth	All Eng. v. Australia	7	for 3
1868/9	B. Coakley	India v. Victoria	6	for 1
1914	F. E. Field	Warwickshire v. Gloucestershire	6	for 1
1906	A. D. Foucher	M.C.C. v. Australia	5	for 0
1921	G. R. Cox	Sussex v. Somerset	5	for 0
1924	R. Tyldesley	Lancashire v. Leicestershire	5	for 0
1925	P. Mills	Gloucestershire v. Warwickshire	5	for 0
1885	F. W. Tate	Sussex v. Kent	5	for 0

Pate, relating what followed, remarked "Well, the next day Tom (Emmett), Pinder, Hill and I scored nicely and we sent them in to get 85 runs. It was 42 too many. They scored 43 and we won by 41. My bowling on that occasion was represented by six wickets for 13 runs.
I got the wickets of Mr. E. M. Grace,
Mr. Townsend and Painter with successful deliveries."

In a letter written by old Bob Thoma to "Old Ebor" (quoted in the latter's above work) in 1898, the former remarks "It was at my end
(he was one of the umpires) that Ted Pate did his sensational bit of trundling (in 1884) at Moreton-in-the-Marsh v. Gloucestershire and I have often told the incident—how he "heaved" away, over after over on the offside with a length to a barley corn,
and never let a single ball drop on the leg side throughout that memorable affair. Ted, too, as a left

PEEL'S RECORD.

Peel's years of service for Yorkshire covered the period 1882-1897.
He captured 1,650 wickets for an average of 15.09. His best analyses were:

VON PAPEN SO FAR SUCCESSFUL

Berlin, July 21.

Herr Von Papen's "Big Stick" policy has, up to the present, been entirely successful in Prussia and there is no reason to doubt that it will continue so, as he has the army and police with him and plenty of officials to replace the malcontents and those dismissed.

The opposition is powerless. Trade Union leaders have instructed the masses to confine themselves to winning the election on the 31st inst.

The Communist party, numbering 5,000,000, may be declared illegal.

Herr Von Papen is not worrying over the election as he is sure that no one party will get an absolute majority.

Now that the big fry like Herr Braun and Herr Severing have been removed, the lesser officials are being weeded out, with the warm approval of the Nazis who are overjoyed at almost controlling Prussia without having a visible mandate from the electors.

The next few weeks will be interesting, but it is practically certain that there will be no serious revolt against Germany while results remain veiled.—Reuter.

Communist Paper Suspended.

Berlin, July 21.

The Communist paper "Rote Fahne" did not appear today as its office was closed by the police following the discovery there of a provocative pamphlet intended for street distribution.—Reuter.

PAINS AFTER EATING STOP AT ONCE!

IT'S not the food you eat which causes pain, but the excess stomach acid which acts up food fermentation, generates painful gases and attacks the delicate stomach lining. This excess acid must, therefore, be neutralised before you can expect any relief. To do this, take a little 'Bisurated' Magnesia after meals or whenever pain is felt. The dangerous acid is immediately neutralised and all pains and discomfort cease at once. 'Bisurated' Magnesia is used and prescribed by doctors all over the world because it is the one certain cure for digestive pains after eating.

'BISURATED' MAGNESIA

THE experiences of the past few years have proved how rapidly the accumulations of a lifetime can be seriously depreciated—or swept away. Life insurance is the one means by which such losses to your estate can be immediately offset. Its function is two-fold—a competence if you live or an estate at death.

A classic of crime becomes the Screen's Epic of Horror! Never before has the screen dared to reveal such a story of fascinating horror... such a terrific tale of murder and mad experiments by Dr. Mirakle it takes courage to see it, but you'll never forget what you experience.

"From apes we came," cried this marvellous man of science, "must we deny our ancestor?" A ruthless zealot seeking a bride for the gods... a people aroused... a city stunned... Never in all your theatre-going have you seen anything like EDGAR ALLAN POE'S greatest story daringly brought to the screen.

AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN

Rome, July 21.
Signor Grandi, who provided a shock by resigning the post of Foreign Minister in the Fascist Cabinet on Wednesday, has been appointed Italian Ambassador in London, as forecast.

Signor Grandi was among the first to join the Fascist Party and has always been one of its most distinguished and popular figures, second only to Mussolini himself. He is not yet forty years of age, but has proved on numerous occasions that he has, in no small measure, the qualities of a statesman and a diplomat.

His appointment to the London Embassy will be warmly welcomed, although he will be missed from the councils of the League of Nations.—Reuter.

The Italian Embassy has been in care of a Charge d'Affaires since the sudden death a few weeks ago of Signor Bordonaro. During Signor Grandi's term as Foreign Minister, Anglo-Italian collaboration on most political issues of importance has been a marked feature of international conferences and one which British statesmen have highly valued.—British Wireless.

BRITAIN'S AIR CHIEF RESIGNS

London, July 21.
The Air Chief Marshal, Sir John Salmond, has tendered his resignation in order to accelerate promotion in the junior ranks of the Royal Air Force.

He will be succeeded by Air Marshal Sir Geoffrey Salmond, the change becoming effective in April next year.—Reuter.

As a result of a fall down the stairway at the Central Magistracy Building yesterday afternoon, Ip Shun, an electrician of the Public Works Department, sustained injuries to his head and was removed to the Government Civil Hospital in an unconscious condition.

YANKS AND ATHLETICS DEFEATED

Babe Ruth Returns to New York Line-up

York, July 21.
Babe Ruth's accident was less serious than at first feared and he returned to the Yankees' line-up to-day, failing to score. The Yankees found themselves defeated by the American Leagues' doormat, Boston. Johnson obtained a home run for Boston.

Results:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.
Pittsburgh	3	8	0
Philadelphia	2	7	0
AMERICAN LEAGUE.
New York	2	4	0

SPURIOUS COIN CHARGE

EVIDENCE NOT SUFFICIENT

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning a Chinese appeared on a charge of being in possession of eight counterfeit Hongkong dollar coins at the Western Market.

According to Detective Sergeant Allen, the defendant went to a pork stall to make a purchase, but before doing so he handed the dealer a ten dollar note which he requested to be changed into dollar coins. The stallholder handed the defendant ten coins which the accused was seen to put into his girdle purse. He then turned slightly around and, producing ten coins from his jacket pocket, remarked that he did not want the coins after all.

The stallholder later discovered that they were counterfeit coins and, with the assistance of a friend, had the defendant handed over to a constable.

His Worship, however, was not satisfied with the evidence of the witnesses and ordered the defendant's discharge.

CHINESE PLANE ARRIVES

STRUGGLE THROUGH THE GALE

Mr. Chen Min-lin, well known Chinese aviator and head of the Chinese Aviation Administration in Fokien, arrived at the Kai Tak Aerodrome yesterday travelling in an Avro-Avian plane. Mr. Chen recently flew from Fokien to Canton in the same machine travelling with an officer of the Nineteenth Route Army and arrived at Canton earlier this week.

Yesterday Mr. Chen left for Hongkong from Canton and it is understood that he encountered the gale but eventually landed safely. Mr. Chen will leave for Fokien as soon as the typhoon threat is over.

London, July 21.
Sir Henry Dickens, K.C., Common Sergeant of the City of London, and one of the oldest English Judges, to-day announced his intention to retire in October.

Sir Henry, who is 84, has been a Judge at the Old Bailey for 15 years. He is the only surviving son of Charles Dickens, the novelist.—British Wireless.

EXCHANGE MARKET LIFELESS

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/8th to 1s. 3 1/4d. this morning, but the local market is quite lifeless.

In London, silver rose 1/8th, the rise being chiefly due to scarcity of sellers. China was a small buyer. After the official fixing, the market ruled quietly steady.

New York reports silver up 1/16th.
